POLES BATTLE OUT OF 'TRAP,' ATTACK GERMANS FROM REAR

NAZIS TO BOMB OPEN CITIES TO 'CRUSH' POLES

Announce Change in Military Program, Blame It on Fight Put Up by Civilians.

WILL USE "ALL MEANS"

Berlin Announces Decision for Widescale Air Raids; Cuts Food Rations.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—Grim warning that any German bombardment of open cities and towns in Poland will bring immediate British reprisals upon the reich was served today by Lord Halifax, British foreign secretary in addressing the house of lords.

(By United Press)

BERLIN—The army high command announced today that Polish resistance would be broken "by all means," and implied that this meant open cities would be bombed from the air.

The announcement was given out as going from "the Fuehrer's headquarters." It said that Polish district governors as well as army commanders had been ordering civilians to fight German troops in all towns and villages.

The German agreement not to bomb open cities from the air or shell them with artillery was "based on the assumption that the enemy himself would not make such open places a battlefield," the announcement said.

It said that since the Poles had not lived up to that assumption, "resistance will be broken by all means."

"The Polish government and her incapable army leaders are responsible for these consequences," the announcement said.

Reduces Meat Rations.

The government today reduced meat rations, including sausage, from one and a half pounds to one pound a week for the next two weeks and confisticated rubber tires from all vehicles except those expressly permitted to operate.

The meat rationing applied only to the Berlin area.

War dispatches from Poland continued optimistic, although nothing was said of the siege of Warsaw, which the Polish radio reported as having been partially lifted by the arrival in the vicinity of two northwestern Polish armies that had crashed out of the German trap.

UP, THEN DOWN

Squalus Brought to Surface, But Sinks Again.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.—(INS)—The submarine Squalus, bearing 26 dead, broke water from stem to stern for the first time today and then, for the third time, success was snatched from salvage operations when the craft's stern sank to the bottom again.

Raising of the stern is now the next step in the salvage operations, expected to culminate with towing of the craft to the navy yard and removal of those who perished for burial ashore.

'AN ILL WIND'

Pupils Feel Pinch of War, Text Books Sink With Boat.

FREDERICTON, N. B.—(AP)—First-grade pupils in New Brunswick schools are feeling the pinch of war—but not complaining.

The provincial government was notified by a Scottish publishing company that hundreds of first-grade text books went down with the torpedoed Athenia 10 days ago.

Thousands of beginning pupils won't get down to serious study until replacements arrive.

GET $1,000 LOOT

TROY—(AP)—Assistant Secretary Lloyd Reck today estimated at $1,000 the loot taken by four men who held up the Covington Building and Loan association at nearby Covington.

Ready for Fight

Senator Borah

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho has notified President Roosevelt that he will vigorously fight an attempt to change the neutrality act should the president call a special session of congress to enact the administration's neutrality program.

RED CROSS SET FOR WAR WORK

Richland Chapter to Take Up Mobilization Question at Meeting Today.

Mansfield and Richland county women may soon be rolling gauze bandages and making surgical garments and supplies again if the Richland County chapter of the Red Cross decides to mobilize its emergency production forces for war-time purposes.

The question will be brought before the Red Cross executive board at its regular meeting late this afternoon when plans will be drawn up. Word has been received from national headquarters of an appeal from the Red Cross of Poland for hospital and surgical garments, bandages and gauze.

Gertrude B. English, executive secretary of the chapter, said there had been no definite instruction, but that national headquarters had asked them to "be prepared" if a general call for aid should come from Europe.

The international organizations of Red Cross are neutral in all wars and give aid alike to both sides, Mrs. English said.

Several Mansfield women already have volunteered their services for Red Cross war work.

Duke In England With Duchess; He Waits War Duties

LONDON—(AP)—At the secluded home of a friend in Sussex today, the Duke of Windsor spent his first day out of self-imposed exile of nearly three years and waited for a war assignment.

He returned secretly from France in a destroyer last night. With him came the American-born woman for whom he gave up the throne.

They stepped onto a red carpet at Portsmouth while a handful of port officials cheered. It was the former Wallis Warfield's first time on British soil as the Duchess of Windsor. They were married in France.

It was the Channel harbor of Portsmouth where the duke last saw England early the morning of Dec. 12, 1936. The night before, in his historic farewell broadcast from Windsor castle, he had said: "It may be some time before I return to my native land."

The homecoming recalled another passage from the memorable broadcast:

"If at any time in the future I can be of service to his majesty in a private station, I shall not fail."

The duke, 45 last June, is a field marshal on the active list and colonel-in-chief of the Welsh guards.

BURNS KILL WORKMAN

CONGRESS TO MEET SEPT. 21 ON NEUTRALITY

Roosevelt Proclamation Sets Date for Special Session to Act on Arms Embargo.

LEADERS CONVENE EARLY

President Dispatches Wires Ordering Dem., G. O. P. Chiefs to Parley Day Before.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt today called congress into extraordinary session to consider repeal of the embargo on shipment of U. S. arms to warring nations of Europe and other emergencies confronting the country.

By proclamation, the president set Sept. 21 as the date for reassembling of the national legislature.

Mr. Roosevelt, in his proclamation, declared that an "extraordinary occasion" requires the presence of congress in the capital, giving the legislators only eight days to wind up their affairs and return to their duties.

At the same time, the president dispatched telegrams to Democratic and Republicans leaders of both senate and house asking that they get to Washington on Wednesday, Sept. 20, if possible for an "informal conference" at the White House.

The presidential proclamation made no mention of Mr. Roosevelt's desire to have the neutrality law revised. Couched in formal language, it merely directed the legislators to be on hand "to receive such communications as may be made by the executive."

Will Ask Repeal.

It was taken for granted, however, that the president would ask for repeal of the arms embargo provision of the neutrality law when he addresses the special session, probably in person, immediately after it convenes.

In addition to revision of the neutrality law the special session may be called to deal with the following problems growing out of the European war:

1. War profiteering. Food prices on many commodities already have risen as a result of hostilities abroad.

2. Provision of additional funds to bring the navy and army to full peacetime strength.

3. Action on possible proposals to speed the nation's rearmament program and to provide for the refitting of naval vessels for conduct of a patrol of American waters.

DISLIKED WAR

Canadian Picked Up In Sandusky By Immigration Officer.

SANDUSKY, O.—(UP)—A 27-year-old Canadian, whose father and uncle were killed in the World war, was taken to Detroit today by E. M. Price, Port Clinton immigration agent, after confessing that he had crossed the border to evade war service.

Lawrence Alcorn, Edward Isle, Canada, told Sandusky police he had entered the United States at Detroit a week ago and hitchhiked to Sandusky.

But the Poles Are Still Holding Out

War Flashes---

Bremen Headed for Italy, Report

LONDON—(INS)—Information has been received by Rotterdam newspapers that the North German Lloyd liner Bremen, recently reported at a seaport in north Russia, "changed her nationality from German to Italian in mid-Atlantic and headed for an Italian port," the British ministry of information announced for publication today. No further details were given.

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The American ambassador to Poland, Anthony Drexel Biddle, today formally charged the German military forces with bombing open cities and towns in Poland, in official telegrams to the state department.

British Warship In Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile—(INS)—A British warship with her name obliterated entered the port of Valparaiso during the night after having reportedly sunk an unidentified German freighter. The warship put to sea again at 3 a. m.

COPENHAGEN—(INS)—Nazi Germany will send 3,000 bombing planes to attack British harbors in reprisal for Britain's blockade, the Berlin correspondent of the Copenhagen newspaper Berlinske Tidende stated today.

WAR RUSH AIDS INDUSTRY HERE

Sharp Increases Noted in All Categories; Steel Rate Highest in 2 Years.

War in Europe which has set the United States dizzy with a sudden rush of consumer buying has brought sharp increases today in all categories of Mansfield industry.

The pickup was reflected generally throughout the city and state with industry geared up to meet the heightened consumer demand which is putting on the same panicky rush that was staged by housewives on the sugar market last week.

A survey today showed:

1. Steel production at the highest level in two years and that additional increases were anticipated.

2. Placements by the Ohio State Employment Service, operated by the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation during the first 11 days of this month more than double those for the same period in August.

3. An increase in WPA employment noted along with a slight decrease in the relief load.

4. Inbound freight car shipments up nearly 100 per cent during the past month indicating increased demands by local industry for raw materials.

5. Scrap steel prices jumped $1

FAVORS REPEAL OF EMBARGO LAW

Ohio G. O. P. Lawmaker Wants Cash and Carry Provisions.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Rep. Dudley White, (R-Ohio), said today he favored repeal of the United States Neutrality law.

"Rather than follow features of discretionary authority and penalty action under the so-called neutrality act," he declared, "I would prefer its repeal and a return to international law, plus four statutory restrictions:

"Cash-and-carry sales; American citizens traveling in belligerent nations must do so at their own risk; continuance of the ban against financial involvements; and retention of the national munitions control board."

NUN DIES AT 107

A member of the Sisters of Charity for 77 years, Sister Mary Joseph was a native of Cool Clough, County Cork, Ireland. She was blind and almost deaf through her later years.

Encircle Nazis At Warsaw In Smashing Drive

Poland's Sudden Push Turns Imminent Defeat Into Triumph; Germans Claim Troops Reach Outskirts of Lwow In Forward March In South.

(By United Press)

Poland's battered armies fought furiously today to turn imminent defeat into a triumph over the Germans on the banks of the Vistula river.

The Polish forces reported trapped west of Warsaw were reported by radio to have turned on the Nazis, fought their way out of the German encircling maneuver and attacked the invaders from the rear.

The unexpected Polish military comeback thus encircled part of the German troops surrounding Warsaw, the radio communiques broadcast from Warsaw and Lwow (Lemburg) reported. The big city of Lodz was reported recaptured by the Poles and the one message said that the Polish Pomorze army, which had been "lost" west of Warsaw since the start of the conflict, had made contact with the defenders of the capital.

Whether the Polish radio reports meant merely that the German lightning war had advanced too rapidly and was being checked until supply bases were fully established remained to be determined, but in any event it was obvious that the Nazis had been given a severe setback in the east.

In Berlin it was announced by the Nazi high command that Polish resistance would be broken "by all means" because civilians were resisting the invader in the undeclared war.

That was taken to mean that open cities would be bombed if necessary by the Germans in an effort to speed their campaign against the main Polish forces at Warsaw and southward along the Vistula.

The German high command also claimed that Nazi troops had made a sudden forward dash in the extreme south, breaking through Polish defenses in the San river sector and sending advance units to the outskirts of Lwow (Lemberg), the Polish Ukraine capital.

If such positions are consolidated it would mean that the chief Polish communication lines toward Rumania were cut off.

Claim Attacks Repulsed.

The German high command reported that its forces were now operating far to the east of Warsaw, as well as on a line extending southward from East Prussia directly east of the Polish capital, but it merely said that all Polish counter-attacks had been repulsed in the areas west of Warsaw where radio reports asserted that the Poles were turning the German flank and threatening to pinch off the extended Nazi lines.

The Nazis meantime reduced

WEST: British Troops Enter Battlefield; French Gain In Saar

(By Associated Press)

PARIS—British troops were reported in French military dispatches this afternoon to have entered action with the French against the Germans on the western front for the first time in the 1939 European war.

French advices said a "great number of well-equipped British troops are participating in combat."

This news was displayed prominently by Paris evening newspapers.

Creation of a Polish army in France was under way with recruiting offices opened throughout the country to receive Polish volunteers.

French infantrymen were reported in dispatches reaching Paris as continuing to edge forward in German territory toward the Siegfried line at several points along a 100-mile front between the Rhine and Moselle rivers.

While rival fliers clashed in the air and the big guns of both sides pounded enemy territory, military advices said French forces east of Saarbruecken had made a "substantial" advance.

Fleet French tanks and armored cars earlier were reported to have reached the outskirts of Saarbruecken, railroad junction and industrial heart of the rich Saar basin, yesterday and to have thrust immediately into the suburbs.

Following this morning's war ministry communique which an-

LONDON: 'Determined to End Hitlerism,' Chamberlain Says

(By United Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told parliament today that Great Britain and France are determined "to put an end once and for all . . . to the menace of Hitlerism."

To that end, he said:

The two powers are carrying out their obligation fully to give every aid to the Poles, who "so far have frustrated" the Nazi conquest.

The British war aims include liberation of the Czechs from Nazi rule.

The British Royal Air Force is operating on French soil and the public will be advised when British troops, already in France, go into action.

The British navy is "constantly" attacking German submarines with success and German shipping has been cleared off the high seas.

Three Polish destroyers have joined the British fleet.

The French army's methodical advance into German territory has straightened out their line and been "completely successful."

The government, meanwhile, is accelerating the calling up of British militia men. The ministry of information announced that "while the order of calling these men of age—oldest first and youngest last—will be adhered to, they will now be called up more rapidly than originally contemplated."

France Knew War Was Inevitable And Prepared for It, Traveler Declares

Loudonville Woman Tells of Native Land as She Returns From Visit.

If Germany hopes to alienate France from Great Britain, it's because Hitler and his war lords do not know the temper of the French people, according to Mrs. Dewey Hoyer of Loudonville who returned Monday after a three-month visit with her people in France.

Mrs. Hoyer, a French woman who came to America in 1920 to visit her sister, Mrs. Floyd Buzzard of Mansfield, returned to America on the S. S. de France Saturday, after a thrilling voyage across the Atlantic 150 miles north of the regular course because of the threat of submarines.

She visited her four sisters and brother during the summer, spending most of her time at Epernay, Marne, where there are now two military bases. One of her brothers-in-law is a first lieutenant in the regular French army, and all three of her other brothers-in-law and her brother are already in service.

France, according to Mrs. Hoyer who as a native of the country did not encounter the reticence which meets the tourist abroad, was much better prepared to meet this war than it was in 1914.

"France began making definite preparations for the war a year ago, right after the signing of the Munich pact," she said, "because the people knew then that the war was inevitable, that nothing short of a war would settle the Hitler problem." They regarded it as a nasty job.

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

SINCE we've been discussing milady's fall fashions for the past few weeks, let's digress a little today and have a glance at what's new in men's attire this season. . . . It looks as though black will be the leading color, followed closely by dark green and dark brown. . . . Three-button tweeds (in domestic or imported cloth), diagonal weaves and worsteds are the important fall suits.

Marianne

All topcoats are shorter this year—and the best styles have fly fronts and set-in shoulders. . . . Tweeds, camelshair and coverts in blue, green or brown are the leading materials and colors. . . . Many of the coats are reversible while some others have zipper linings. . . . Raincoats are copied in style from topcoats—they're gaberdine and come in shades of tan or green.

Smooth felt and broad brims are the keynote to the men's new fall hats whether they're the tyrolian, porkpie or tailored type. . . . The brims are either welt or silk bound, and silk, felt and braided bands are the most important. . . . Shirts have tab or kent collars. . . . And ties are leading with regimental stripes—wools to be worn with sport tweeds.

And with that picture of gentlemen's fashions, a quick look at milady's styles shown that black will also be a very important color for her, too. . . . One especially smart dress I saw while shopping yesterday had a black crepe skirt (featuring front fullness) combined with a black and white plaid taffeta top—and the fitted black jacket had revers to match the plaid blouse. . . . Checks are smart for fall, too—especially when they're black and white.—I saw a wood dress of this tytpe in one of the local shops yesterday, and it had a peplin waist with black braid and white pique trim.

ARE YOU looking for a change in makeup to wear with your new fall clothes? If so, a leading woman cosmetologist has just introduced a new shade that is sure to please you. . . . It's called "burnt sugar" and is a rose-copper shade made especially to harmonize with green, rust and brown—shades which are so important every fall—you'll like it with black, too. . . . "Burnt sugar" can be purchased in creme rouge, lipstick and nail enamel.

* * *

If you're a business or professional woman (or perhaps even if you're not) you probably have a great deal of trouble finding a purse to suit your needs, so you'll be sure to like the business women's bags that one of the downtown stores is showing now. . . . These purses come in brown or black leather, they're leather lined for long wear, and are fitted with keycase, mirror, comb, notebook, bill and coin purse—there are zipper pockets—extra pockets—and in fact, a place for everything. . . . Ladies' billfolds will prove handy for you too, and you'll like them because they come in such a variety of colors—navy blue, green, wine, black and brown. . . . Or if you're a school girl, you'll be delighted with a smart little campus case—just big enough for your hankie, makeup, cigarets and glasses—and small enough not to be bothersome or conspicuous. . . . They can be had in wool plaid, calf or alligator calf.

NOW that the days are getting cooler and you're wearing a new fall ensemble, you'll no doubt want to change from that floral cologne you've been using this summer to a little heavier scent: . . . And that's why you'll probably like the "Secrets de Suzanne," a new French perfume that comes all done up in an imported starry box. . . . Other fall fragrance colognes are "Cassandra," "Zibeline" and "Bamboo"—whose scents and bottles are as unusually interesting as their names imply.

* * *

IN THE GIFT DEPARTMENTS downtown you'll find all kinds of birthday, friendship, farewell and bridge gifts awaiting you. . . . For instance, while shopping yesterday, I saw a beautiful little sachet doll all dressed up in pink satin as fragrant as woodland violets. . . . A fluffy white bath powder puff with a green handle and back transforming it into a pretty flower. . . . Purse size cases of foundation creme and powder in twin packs of four shade combinations. . . . Suede and feathers combined into birds, flowers and butterflies for the lapel of your fall suit or coat. . . . And something really clever . . . a little wooden box to hang outside the door, which contains a pad and pencil for friends to sign—and the inscription on the box says: "If at home you do not find us, leave a note that will remind us."

SCHOOL COUNCIL DRAWS UP PLANS AT SENIOR HIGH

Student Representatives First Group to Organize for New Semester.

Meeting for the first time this semester, the Student Representative Council at Senior high school has drawn up plans for the new school year.

The council is the first club at the school to organize for the new semester. Others are expected to hold their first meetings beginning next week after the scheduling of classes has been completed, H. D. Bishop, assistant principal, said.

The council voted to continue the weekly noon dances started at the school two years ago. The dances will be held every Friday during the noon lunch hour and will get under way in two weeks. Music will be furnished through the school's public address system.

Thursday morning the council will hold an election in the 10-B class to select two class representatives for the council. Representatives from other classes were elected last spring before school closed as were officers for the first semester. William Harmony is president of the group, Fred Lavender, vice president, and Albert Osborn, secretary.

Names Choir Leaders.

A. LeMoine Derr, director of vocal music at the school yesterday, named six students who will act as group leaders in the A Capella choir for the semester. The students will head the different sections in the choir. They are June Statler, first sopranos; Pearl Rube, second sopranos; Julia Fishback, altos; Richard Wright, tenors; Richard Sparks, basses, and Billie McQuillon, secretary and head leader.

Seventy students have been selected for the choir in tryout completed yesterday. The choir meets every day during the third period.

Leaders for three other vocal groups, the Boys' and Girls' glee clubs and the mixed chorus will be named sometime next week when those groups meet to organize Derr said. During the year the mixed chorus will present two musical numbers.

Mr. Alex McCall Puts Vendol To Real Test and Tells of His Astonishing Relief

Acid indigestion, gas, bloating, nervousness, and some other troubles due to constipation quickly relieved. Advises everyone to try this famous Root, Herb, and Alkaline medicine.

Mr. ALEX McCALL,
Retired Ohio State Employee.

Every day substantial citizens of this city and nearby vicinity who have put Vendol to the test are coming forward to tell other sufferers how this famous medicine has relieved them of constipation which was causing a trail of other troubles such as nervous indigestion, torpid bowels, toxic aches and pains and other inorganic troubles.

Mr. Alex McCall of 89 West North Broadway, Columbus, Ohio, a retired employee of Ohio State University, is among the latest to praise the powers of this great Root, Herb, and Alkaline medicine, as follows: "For the past few years I had suffered from constipation and at times it was so bad that it made me feel bad all over. I felt dull, tired, and ached through my body nearly all the time.

"I often had bilious headaches, and dizzy spells that made spots come before my eyes and seemed there were constant pains through my shoulders, back, hips, and down through my limbs, and also a distressing condition that broke up my sleep every night.

"One of the worst results of this constipation though was the acid condition in my stomach, gas, bloated feeling after eating, and a lump in my throat which I could neither swallow nor throw out.

"The first few doses of Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets proved I had found the right medicine and now since taking four bottles of this splendid mixture, my relief is astonishing. It relieved my constipation and in no time hardly the sourness, gas, bloating, lump in my throat, were relieved and I eat without the slightest distress afterward. This brought relief from the pains headaches, dizziness spots before my eyes by also acting as a diuretic to my kidneys. I now enjoy a full night's sleep without a break.

"Vendol is wonderful and has helped me so much I want to advise everyone suffering from the same cause to give it a trial."

Mr. McCall gave this endorsement for Vendol from a genuine desire to give others a chance to obtain the same benefits from this great Root, Herb, and Alkaline medicine.

Vendol has helped many Mansfield people in the same way. Call on the Vendol Man at Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & Fourth Sts., and let him tell you all about this great Root, Herb, and Alkaline medicine. Vendol is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

• • • THIS IS WHAT WE MEAN!

There are some things that words just can't describe. "Thrilling" tells so little of what you feel on that first dive into space on a roller coaster . . . and "pickup" is such a dull word to describe a panther's leap. And "great modern gasoline" can't possibly describe SOHIO SUPREME'S surging power. That, too, is something you have to feel!

SOHIO SUPREME... the great successor to SOHIO Ethyl

Because SOHIO SUPREME so greatly exceeds the minimum specifications for an "Ethyl" gasoline, we have discontinued the sale of SOHIO Ethyl.

We have kept the advantages of Ethyl fluid, and developed in SOHIO SUPREME a motor fuel that is higher in anti-knock, with a better balance of acceleration and power, than any gasoline we have ever before produced for automobile engines. Regardless of the car you drive, we believe the superior qualities of this modern gasoline will be evident with your very first tankful—which you can get today at no increase over the usual price for premium fuels.

Richland Real Estate Tax Collections Best In Years

RECEIPTS STILL COMING IN, TOP 100 PER CENT

Payments Exceed Total Yearly Charge by $798 as Old Bills Are Paid Up.

Richland county had collected $798 more than its 1939 real estate and special assessment tax charge today for a better than 100 per cent collection and one of the best in the county's history.

With tax payments for the year still coming in, receipts today amounted to $1,197,920, Treasurer John E. Kolb's figures showed. The current tax charge for the year was $798 less than that.

The better than 100 per cent collection is explained by the fact that some of the payments made this year were for delinquent taxes which were due before 1939 and were not included in the current charge.

All Current Bills Not Paid.

The 100 per cent collection does not mean that the county property owners paid every dollar of tax they owed this year, Kolb said. It shows, however, that current collections were unusually high and that payments of old taxes were sufficient to boost the total above the year's tax bill.

Of the total year's receipts, $640,000 was collected in the first half of the year and $557,920 in the period which just closed.

Kolb said he expected to collect at least $10,000 more by tomorrow and that other late payments probably will be made before the end of the month.

Showing almost as well are the Mansfield Conservancy district tax receipts which today totaled $39,614. Kolb said the delinquent conservancy tax was reduced by $10,000 during the past year.

His report showed that conservancy taxes are delinquent on 5,517 parcels of property in Mansfield and Madison township while the taxes have been paid up on 20,713 parcels.

Pershing, 79 Today, Urges Congress to Boost Army Power

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — General John J. Pershing urged today, on his 79th birthday, that congress provide funds at its coming special session "to carry the military establishment to its full peace strength."

Full strength would be 280,000 men in the regular army and 424,000 in the national guard. Since the war broke out in Europe, President Roosevelt has ordered expansion of the army to 227,000 and the guard to 235,000.

The A. E. F. Commander-in-chief said in a birthday statement to the press:

"I must again recall our deplorable situation when we entered the World war 22 years ago. Then not a single move had been made, from a military point of view, to prepare for it. That experience, with its costly lesson, I am happy to say, appears certain to be avoided in the event that we should again become involved in war."

The general issued his statement from Walter Reed hospital, where he is undergoing a periodic physical checkup and watching Europe's new war from his bed and easy chair.

"The recent action of President Roosevelt in authorizing an immediate increase in the strength of the army and navy has my hearty support."

A tiny first grade pupil at Hedges school, crying because she was tardy, had a different, but frank, answer ready yesterday when asked why she was late. Walter Winchell, famous Broadway columnist, has a note in a recent column on the opening of "The Rains Came" in New York City last Friday. "The Rains Came," which is playing to capacity at the Roxy, opened the day New York had its heaviest rain and thunderstorm in years. Publicity stunt no doubt."

Some one around Mansfield is having a serious regeneration of the soul or else a terrific attack of conscience. Both the Madison and Ritz theaters have received letters in the last couple of days which enclosed stamps, the former for 31 cents and the latter for 21 cents, and both said the same thing: "Enclosed find stamps to pay for candy bars which I stole from your candy machine with the use of slugs. I am sorry I defrauded you." The note to the Madison also included the Ohio which had been victimized.

Mansfield men and women capable of instructing classes and who are eager to "do something" in these serious times, should meet up with Russel Gimbel, Friendly House director, who is looking for just such people. The settlement house program gets under way Oct. 2, with new classes for men, women and children, and Gimbel needs eight dependable workers to take charge of the classes. They will be held both afternoons and evenings.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Bund In U. S. Does Same Thing Nazi Spies Did In Czechoslovakia, Poland

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—The fate of the Austrians, Czechs and Poles, betrayed by Nazi conspirators in their midst, proves that the anti-American bund, operating flagrantly in the United States under the protection of American laws and the tolerant feelings of a free people, is no longer a joke or a mild irritant.

This bund is a dangerous conspiracy which one day might result in internal disorders, sabotage, the dynamiting of bridges and reservoirs and the betrayal of decent Americans to firing squads of Nazi agents.

Already this Nazi organization has been connected with the theft of American military secrets, and on all sides there is evidence of its campaign to create hatred between elements of American people who lived in harmony until that time, about three years ago, when one of Hitler's controlled newspapers threatened to take an interest in our internal affairs which would not be pleasant.

Since that time the anti-American bund has boldly moved into American domestic politics, and its leaders arise in meetings of foreign conspirators and native fellow-travelers to insult not only the president, personally, but the office which he holds and the nation which elected him.

The anti-American bund professes to be an American organization, and its fuehrer holds naturalization papers, but that camouflage is the same that was used in Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland. It likewise includes a certain number of native traitors to impart a phony American character in an alien conspiracy. This also was true in Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland.

Czechoslovakia contained an element of people of German blood who lived in a border district that never was German and who never had been German citizens themselves. Under a leader appointed by Hitler they began a campaign of terrorism against their Czech neighbors. They took every legal advantage of their Czech citizenship, demanded representation in the government and local administration, and at the same time marched under the Nazi swastika, heiled Hitler and openly advocated the conquest of their country by the Nazis.

Many of them were agents of the German Gestapo, or secret police, and these spies were the agents through whom the rank and file members of the plot cleared through to Berlin information regarding the attitude of individual patriotic Czechs. When the Nazis swept in the secret police rounded up decent Czechs, pointed out to them by the undercover agents who used the liberties of their technical Czech citizenship to destroy the country.

Last Saturday it was revealed that Civilian Poles, most of them patriotic young fellows similar to the average young American, were being rounded up in batches and led off to face Nazi firing squads in their own country under the escort of armed agents of the German police.

These Polish patriots had been turned up, fingered, as our gangsters have taught us to say, by German-Poles who lived among them as neighbors.

The German-Poles were spies, keeping records of the grudges which developed in the friction-created Polish nation. The Poles knew they were traitors all the time, so there is no reason to doubt they did bear down on them now and again. What people wouldn't show a little resentment against agents of a foreign enemy? Except the Americans, who will stand for anything.

The Nazi secret police were not bothering with elaborate trials of these patriotic Poles. They don't bother to conduct fair trials of their own in their own country, so it is idle to think that they might be any less savage with members of a breed which they hold to be inferior.

This is payday for the Nazi conspirators in Poland. Every Nazi who owes money to a Pole, every Nazi who tried to swindle a Pole and was caught at it, every Nazi living in Poland who violated Polish laws and was punished for it will now file an information with the Gestapo, accusing his enemies of sniping German soldiers and civilians or oppressing Nazi-Poles before the "liberation," and young Poles will be slaughtered in masses for their revenge and for the glory of Adolf Hitler.

The anti-American bund is precisely the same kind of organization in this country, and the sooner the Americans decide that their democratic tolerance does not run for traitors and treason the less damage the bund will be able to report to Hitler.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The local social spotlight focused brightly the other eve on one Maxwell Everett Rosenbloom, sometimes known as Slapsy Maxie. Mr. Rosenbloom, it must be admitted, had quite a bit to do with the focusing, even though normally he is a shy violet in this forest of exhibitionists.

The occasion was the gala world premiere (to end premieres) of Slapsy Maxie's latest short subject, his first but not—unfortunately?—his last "Slapsy Maxie's." The setting, of the picture and premiere, was Maxie's night club on Beverly Boulevard, an establishment made famous when Maxie slapped on a 5-cent cover charge, as he explained, to "keep the riff-raff out."

The setting, of course, was exactly right. Maxie had been reading about movies being "premiered" in their actual settings, so what more fitting than that Maxie's first starrer, which takes place—for a couple of scenes—in Slapsy Maxie's, should be unveiled on the spot where it wasn't made?

So the lights and cops were out, and the mobs came to prove that local mobs will come to anything that has a light in front. Outside the door was a table loaded with dark glasses for "tired picture watchers," and another equipped with headache tablets—antidote for the after-effects of Maxie's acting. Also on display was the old, once lush car that was to be given away, plus assorted lures like bank night, bingo, and free dishes.

Inside Mine Host Maxie wore a light grey suit and a worried air. The latter was occasioned probably by the "house"—either because it wasn't big enough to hold the invited mobs, or because the drinks were on it. In the drawing for "bank night" the winning ticket was held (by odd coincidence) by Binnie Barnes, who works for Zanuck, whereas Maxie works for Warner Bros. In the drawing for the car the winning ticket was held (also by coincidence) by Jane Wyman, who works for Warner Bros. and is a more photogenically happy subject for the news cameras than the other guests who couldn't see their tickets, anyway. I mean it was that dark, not that merry.

The picture, to cheers and applause, finally was unreeled . . . At this point we will sit quietly for a moment's silent contemplation of the beauties of nature, life, and love—and hope we can forget the epic. "Good reviews or else," as the former lightweight champ delicately phrased his summons. (O. K., Maxie, where's Else?)

This much, however, can be honestly conceded. Maxie is a comedian. In his picture, as in his "floor show," he makes himself the butt for laughter, capitalizing on his dumb pan and his (or his script-writer's) talent for Goldwynisms, such as: "I have an infection for you."

* * *

P. S.—Despite my personal preference for Else as concerns the picture, I hear that Slapsy Maxie's second starring vehicle is even now preparing.

IN THE RUHL BOOK

By OSCAR RUHL,
News-Journal Sports Editor.

AMERICAN league baseball is sinking to a new low in Cleveland, Scribe H. G. Salsinger of the Detroit News believes.

Even Leland Stanford MacPhail, the gentleman who introduced night baseball into the major leagues, will tell you that Cleveland is going far too far.

"You cannot imagine Mr. Macphail, the master showmen of baseball, pulling anything quite as crude as the Cleveland enterprise," Salsinger writes in condemning the Indians' Labor Day double header that stretched from the afternoon into the night.

"And you cannot imagine any other major league club doing it, regardless of the fact that two or three of them probably would like to."

All these years we've been hearing tales about Sam Breadon, an automobile salesman who owns the St. Louis Cardinals, Salsinger points out.

American leaguers have been describing Breadon as a money-mad business man who will do anything to bring a dollar through the turnstiles of his ball park.

"He has probably robbed the good old national game of considerable dignity on those occasions when his county fair blood got the better of him, but why pick on Breadon?" Salsinger asks.

"Why pick on him with Cleveland in the major leagues?"

Says Slap's Baseball Knowledge Limited.

THE PRESIDENT of the Cleveland club is Alva Bradly, a real estate operator. The vice-president is Cyril C. Slapnicka referred to jocularly in base ball circles as "Slapstick" Slapnicka. He's a fellow whose baseball knowledge is limited (as many of his maneuvers have proved) and whose avariciousness is unlimited, as the present program indicates, for, according to our information, "Slapstick" receives a percentage of the gate receipts at Cleveland.

"If the story is true it explains Slapnicka, but it doesn't excuse Bradley, a gent who is supposed to have a lot of civic virtue and local pride and all that sort of thing.

"Slapnicka and Bradley, known as Slap and Alva, have etched the high lights into the American league season.

"Good old Alva caused the K. M. Landis edict against webbing in fielders' gloves by delivering a big beef last June. It later developed that the Bradley protest resulted from the fact that Bradley couldn't tell the difference between a strip of adhesive tape on Frankie Crosetti's glove and a base ball.

"Slapnicka's antics are more spectacular. We do not know whether it was 'Slapstick' or Alva who engaged Antonio Galento as an added attraction at one of Cleveland's night games. Antonio responded to the call (since the Cleveland club met his price) and agreed to furnish the clowning features of the night. When Bob Feller took his position in the box for the start of the game, a grotesque figure in base ball uniform, smoking a fat cigar, waddled to the plate and waved a bat. Feller was surprised, if not shocked. He looked at the huge apparation at the plate and, turning to one of his infielders, made what has become a more or less historic remark:

"I'm not going to throw the ball till I hear it speak."

'Anything for a Dime.' Says Salsinger.

ONLY a few weeks ago the Cleveland club suddenly recalled Boudreau and Mack, a second-base combination loaned to the Buffalo club of the International league.

"The recall was sudden and Boudreau and Mack were shoved into a night game, with a great fanfare of publicity.

"We do not know whether Bradley or Slapnicka was responsible for this strictly commercial manuever but the blame must rest squarely upon Bradley. He could have stopped the transfer by a one-syllable word.

"The impression grows that the Cleveland club is being conducted for the sole purpose of squeezing the last dime of profit out of the enterprise. Base ball in Cleveland seems to be strictly a business from which a certain percentage of profit is demanded. And any time base ball is conducted in that manner it is just too bad for the game."

OUCH! Mr. Salsinger.

SEEKS TITLE GO

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Tom Stanley, manager of Georgie Pace, Cleveland bantamweight, announced today that he has offered a $1,000 bonus to Sixto Escobar, bantam titleholder, if he will agree to a title fight with the Cleveland [illegible]

Win Titles

Vild to Head 'A' Golf League

Selected to Succeed Schlegel at Possum Run Dinner.

Frank Vild was elected president of The News-Journal A golf league at the annual dinner and election of officers at the Possum Run clubhouse last night. He succeeds Harry Schlegel.

Pete Linster was re-elected secretary-treasurer, and next year will mark the fifth season that he has served in this capacity.

Linster was a member of the Richland Printers, who won The News-Journal title for the third straight time this year. Other members of the team were Oscar Frantz, Pete Zeides and V. H. Oberlander.

The Kushin brothers, Carl and Al, were the low average men in the league this year with respective marks of 36 1-5 and 36 1-3. The former also shot the lowest score, a 31.

Team average honors were won by the champion Printers with 38½. The best won and lost percentage was fashioned by Schlegel, who won 12 out of the 15 matches in which he competed.

FOUR DOGS REPRESENT CITY IN BEAGLE TRIALS

Mansfield was represented by four dogs in the Columbus beagle trials held over the recent weekend. They were Happy Jack, owned by Jack Conrad; Johns Red, owned by John Wiesbarth; Fairfax Peg, owned by Charles Brown, and Robbie's Babe, owned by C. I. Robison. Happy Jack was among the leaders in the 15 male class.

SPRINGFIELD GETS JUMP IN MID-ATLANTIC FINALS

SPRINGFIELD — (AP) — Springfield's Indians jumped into a one-game lead over the Canton Terriers in the Mid-Atlantic league's final playoff today, all because of some fine pitching and slugging. The second game will be played here tonight. Willard Embree maintained the Indian policy of stingy pitching as the Tribe scalped the Pups 14 to 1 here last night.

Builds Aerial Drive

Snyder Stresses Air Game as Tygers Prepare for Akron West Invasion.

MANSFIELD high school will literally flood the air with passes this football season.

Paul Snyder, late of Mt Vernon, who succeeds J. Russell Murphy as head gridiron strategist at the west end school, is the authority for the statement.

Snyder is a firm believer that the best route to touchdown territory from nearly any point in the field is through the air.

No, this does not mean that Snyder minimizes the importance of a smooth running attack. Far from it. Mansfield, apparently, has the punch, drive and deception of other years in its running game, but, nevertheless, Snyder figures on having his boys do a lot of throwing.

If a good passing game can be produced and the running department does not bog down, Mansfield's effectiveness in the offensive department should be increased.

Snyder has every boy in the backfield who can throw the oblong leather at all heaving the pigskin these days. While there may not be any Fisches, Webers or Hallabrins in the lot, Snyder is satisfied that several of the boys will develop.

But he expects to be able to say more about the throwing after Saturday afternoon when the Tygers inaugurate their campaign with the Akron West Cowboys at Stadium field.

The more promising passers are Dave Templeton, Howard Hershey and Jim LeMunyon. Joe Logan, the sprint star of Harry Mehock's track team, also can throw.

Bob Lantz, Dave Prion, Gene Miller, John Pfahler, Bob Winbigler and Hershey are better than average pass receivers.

Snyder's system is similar to Murphy's. Variations are minor. The new coach probably stresses more ball handling and deception.

It is likely that most of the plays will be run from double wing-back and punt formation.

Seven Vets Return at Crestline

—News-Journal Photos.

This is the way the Crestline high school backfield will look as it lines up against Sandusky St. Mary's under the floodlights at Crestline Friday night. (Left to right) Burno Moleno, halfback, Phil Ganni, halfback, Bob Frye, quarterback, and Wilber Kibler, fullback. All are lettermen.

Hutsonmen Face Three Class A Foes on Tough Eight-Game Schedule This Season.

By CHARLES MARTIN

COACH MERLE HUTSON of Crestline high school is praying none of his regulars suffer injuries during the 1939 football campaign. For he has no capable replacements to take over the varsity duties if any one of his key men has to retire to the sidelines.

Seven veterans return this fall to form the backbone of the team which faces three Class A foes on the eight-game schedule.

At present the backfield problem is not bothering Coach Hutson as his regular ball toters are lettermen.

But graduation left big holes in the forward wall and Hutson is trying desperately to fill those positions before Sandusky St. Mary's invade Crestline in the season's opener Friday night.

Hutson is using Dean Fisher, Bob Mick and Bob Histed in the center of the line this week and although they look impressive he is wondering how they will hold up when the chips are down.

Fisher, 175-pound letterman, is filling the pivot post that Earl Fisher so capably handled last fall when Crestline won six games and suffered three defeats.

Hutson

Mick and Histed are new recruits who must fill the guard spots that were held down by Louis Celleni and Paul Keltner in 1938. Incidentily, Hutson will miss the deadly drop-kicking of Keltner who gave the Crestline team a number of extra points in important battles last year with his educated toe.

* * *

Phil Ganni and Bob Frye top the list of backfield candidates. Both are seasoned veterans and Hutson expects them to be the main cogs in offensive play. The two leather luggers are spectacular broken-field runners and accurate passers. Ganni will handle the punting assignment.

The other lettermen on the line are Eugene Reardon and Bill Corbin. Reardon is an end and Corbin a tackle. Howard Schattaur and Jim Stump are the other flankmen. The schedule:

Sept. 15—Sandusky St. Mary's.
Sept. 22—Galion.
Sept. 29—At Madison.
Oct. 6—Fremont St. Joseph.
Oct 13—Tiffin Calvert.
Oct. 20—At Willard.
Oct. 27—At Marion St. Mary's.
Nov. 4—At Shelby.

Grimes Solves Tribe Problem

Looks Like Answer to 2nd Base Situation.

NEW YORK — (AP) — It looked more than ever today as if the Indians had solved their second-base problem—and they only had to go 72 miles south of Cleveland to do it.

Oscar Grimes, the Minerva, O., youngster, submitted another reference to Boss Oscar Vitt yesterday in his quest for the job as he blasted a home run in the 10th inning to beat the Yankees, 4 to 3.

In addition Grimes handled nine chances faultlessly, including two sparkling pickups.

The Redskins battled the world champions again today in the 1939 finale between the two teams. Vitt instructed Bob Feller to go after his 21st victory. The Yanks planned to use Atley Donald or Red Ruffing.

Second in importance in the extra-inning decision was the veteran Mel Harder, who limited the Yankees to nine hits and notched his 12th victory of the season.

The triumph kept the Tribe within striking distance of Boston and Chicago and increased its fourth-place margin over Detroit to three games.

Ferguson Auditors Bow In U. S. Softball Finals.

The Ferguson State Auditors, Ohio softball champions, who defeated the DeLuxe Cabs of Mansfield in the state finals, were the victims of fast ball twirling of Norb Warken last night and lost the U. S. softball title to the Covington, Ky., Boosters, 5 to 1, in Chicago.

Warken struck out 14. His record of 51 consecutive scoreless innings was marred in the last inning when the Fergusons scored on errors. Warken gave three hits while Covington reached Ralph Solt for eight.

The Alameda, Cal., Greigs retained the girls' championship by defeating the Louisville, Ky., Dairy Maids, 1 to 0.

Barons In Midst of House-cleaning

CLEVELAND—(INS)—The Cleveland Barons of the International-American Hockey league today were in the midst of their annual house-cleaning in preparation for the new season.

The second sale of the week was announced by President Al Sutphin when he reported that Mickey Blake, Baron defense man acquired last season from Syracuse, had been sold to the Pittsburgh Hornets.

MEAD, AMBERS' MANAGER SET DOWN BY COMMISH

NEW YORK—(INS)—The investigation into the boxing business which Eddie Mead, manager of Henry Armstrong, threatened to demand as a result of Armstrong's loss of the world lightweight championship to Lou Ambers last week, has been cancelled and so has Mr. Mead.

Specifically, he has apologized to the New York ring commission for saying, among numerous other things, that Armstrong was jobbed out of the title and he now stands suspended for a year as of today. In the dog house with him goes Al Weill, manager of Ambers, and a party to the post-fight confusion.

"GOLDEN MILE" STILL RICH

KALGOORLIE, Australia—(AP) —The latest survey of the famous "Golden Mile" gold deposit which, 34 years ago, precipated one of the greatest gold rushes in history, indicates that there are still 1,500,000 tons of payable ore there for working. Last year 1,167,792 ounces of gold were taken out.

Mr. Fendrick, Notice; Generals Are Tough

Wooster Brings Heavy Team to Madison Friday Night for Football Inaugural.

MR. AL FENDRICK, please notice.

According to reports from up Wooster way, you and your Rams of Madison high school are in for a little bit of trouble Friday night.

This Wooster high school eleven which you meet at your stadium under the lights Friday night is one of the most promising the Coach Eddie Winsper, once of Shelby, has ever turned out, so they say.

And, don't forget, Al, Wooster didn't have such a bad football team last fall. If you remember, the Generals were undefeated. The only mark on their schedule was a tie game.

The Wooster line will average something like 180 pounds regardless of what combination is used, the reports say. Backfield will also be heavy.

In other words, Al, it looks like your biggest battle of the season will come in your first game.

NOW, something about the Wooster players. Al. Hal Dean, 185 pounds soaking wet, will be the fullback this year. He was a tackle last fall. . . . Roger Stoneburner, 182, has been shifted from tackle to end . . . said to be a good pass receiver. . . . Colored Vernon Woods, a mite at 160, will carry ball more on slants this year if Dean fulfills expectations as fullback. . . . Harry Smith, just 155, is a guard, and as tough as they come, they say. . . . Donald Heckman, 180, is one of the tackles. . . . James Strock, 190, (wow!), will probably be at center . . . reduced from 220. . . . The other tackle, Bill Grassman, weighs only 220 (wow, wow!)

Small-Squad Bugaboo Again Plagues Eagles.

(By Associated Press)

The small-squad bugaboo plagued Ashland college's Eagles again today as they prepared for the 1939 football season with only 15 players in uniform.

The Eagles almost give up the sport several times last season when poor turnouts and injuries depleted their squad. However, they hope to have at least 22 in uniform by the end of the week. Eight lettermen are back.

ASSOCIATION LEADERS FALL IN INAUGURALS

(By Associated Press)

Kansas City and Minneapolis rode high as the No. 1 and 2 teams, respectively, during most of the American Association's regular season, but the Shaughnessy playoffs are something else.

Third place Indianapolis humiliated the Kansas City champions last night, 3 to 0, in one playoff opener and fourth place Louisville took care of Minneapolis in the other, 8 to 2.

SEATTLE WINS CROWN ON PACIFIC COAST

Myers' Clout Saves Bucky From Defeat

Shortstop's Home Run In Last of Ninth With One Aboard Gives Cincy Life.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY, United Press Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK—Nobody can tell Bucky Walters that Billy Myers isn't the greatest little shortstop in the National league. Walters has been saying all season that Myers and Lonnie Frey were the guys who made a great pitcher out of him.

Every time he came to New York the lanky, angular-jawed Cincinnati ace said the secret of his success was, "Myers and Frey." Walters won his 24th victory yesterday, and Myers was the fellow who prevented his being charged with his 11th defeat.

Brooklyn had the Reds licked, 2-0, with two out in the ninth when Myers came to bat with a runner on first. Luke Hamlin served up his "gopher ball" and Myers smacked it over the left field wall for a homer, tying the count. Then the Reds went on to win in the 10th on a walk to Bill Werber, a sacrifice, an intentional pass, and Frank McCormick's single.

In conquering the Dodgers on five hits to snap their six-game winning streak, Walters won his third game in eight days. It was a highly necessary victory inasmuch as the Cardinals nosed out the Phillies to retain their 3½ spot behind the league leaders. After Joe Marty had hit a homer with a mate on in the seventh to put the Phils ahead, 3-2, Terry Moore duplicated Marty's trick in the St. Louis half to give the Cards a 4-2 triumph. Ike Pearson gave up only five hits but three of them were homers. Medwick and Mize hit one each with the bases empty.

Hank Leiber's homer with the bases loaded in the first inning featured the Cubs' 8-3 victory over the Bees. Bill Lee went the route for his 17th win, allowing eight hits.

The Yanks need four victories to clinch the American league flag, with 19 games left to play. They lost the first game of the final western invasion when the Indians scored a 10-inning triumph, 4-3. Oscar Grimes' homer in the 10th was the payoff. Mel Harder outpitched Lefty Gomez to record his 12th win.

The Red Sox began their final long home stand with a 2-1 triumph over the Tigers. The victory enabled Boston to protect its three-game lead over the third-place White Sox.

Thornton Lee hurled the White Sox to a 3-2 victory over Washington, dishing out only four hits.

Rookie Lester McCrabb made his major league debut by pitching the Athletics to a 9-1 victory over the Browns. He gave up only seven hits.

Yesterday's hero—Billy Myers, Reds' little shortstop who hit a homer with a mate on base and two out to enable Cincinnati to beat the Dodgers in the 10th.

Fred Simon, Lois Shuey Win Park Tennis Titles.

Fred Simon and Lois Shuey were returned the champions in the tennis tournament staged recently by the Liberty Park Sports association.

Ex-Notre Dame Captain Leads Amateur Field

Tom Sheehan Sets Sizzling Pace to Win Medal Honors With 139.

By FRITZ HOWELL

CHICAGO — (AP) — When great golf fields are mentioned in the future, the chances are the boys will cite as the finest of them all the 64 who started match play today over North Shore's hazardous holes for the 43rd national amateur championship.

Still in there battling, after the most sizzling qualifying test in the tourney's history, were a former national open king, four national amateur winners, a quartet of national publinks rulers and five national intercollegiate victors.

That medalist, by the way, was just one of the three reasons why Irish eyes were smiling as the qualifying scores were posted. He was Tom Sheehan, captain of Notre Dame's golf team the last two years, who ripped two strikes off the all-time qualifying mark with a sensational five-under-par 139 for 36 holes. The Detroit youngster held a three-stroke lead over the field.

Three blows off the pace with a two-under-par 142 was Maurice J. McCarthy, Ohio's "great McConigle," three-time winner of the Buckeye state's amateur laurels, former New York metropolitan and National Intercollegiate champion, and Walker Cup star. A stroke back of him was a third son of Old Erin, B. Patrich Abbott of Altadent, Calif., curly-haired movie extra.

Pairings and qualifying scores of Ohioans and opponents:

Dan Carmichael, Columbus (155), vs. Harold Mandley, Wethersfield, Conn. (147).

Edward Meister, Cleveland (153) vs. Bruce McCormick, Pasadena (151).

Bob Servis, Dayton (149), vs. Don Schumacher, Dallas, (149).

Maurice McCarthy, Cincinnati (142), vs. Henry Kowal, Hamilton, N. Y., (153).

Johnny Fischer, Cincinnati, (150), vs. W. S. Alexander, Charlotte, N. C., (153).

BARBERTON REMAINS IN AMATEUR TOURNEY

WASHINGTON—(AP)— Barberton, O., was among eight teams still in the running today for the National Amateur Baseball Federation championship. Birmingham, Ala., defeated the Barberton entry yesterday, 5 to 1, but it was the Ohioan's first setback in three starts and left them in competition.

Washington eliminated Dayton, O., 5 to 4, and Springfield, Mass., put Cleveland out of the tournament with a 5 to 4 victory.

Frets at Being Installed as Favorite.

PHILADELPHIA—(U.P.)—Lou Nova, the California kid, his training over for his bout with Tony Galento at Municipal stadium Friday night, today fretted at—of all things—being installed generally as a 9 to 5 favorite. "I'm not losing any sleep over it," Nova said, "but I'm not used to it."

SEWAGE PLANT EFFICIENCY UP TO 96 PER CENT

August Report Shows Increase In Full Treatment After Drop During July.

Mansfield's sewage treatment plant operated at increased efficiency during August both in volume of sewage treated and in percentage of purification, Plant Superintendent James R. Turner reported today.

His figures showed that 96 per cent of all sewage entering the plant during the month was given full treatment as compared with 93 per cent during July and only 82 per cent in August, 1938.

It also said that sewage given full treatment had a purification percentage of 93 per cent.

A total of 76 million gallons of sewage entered the plant last month, Turner said, and 73 million gallons were given full treatment. Three million gallons were by-passed and then only after 50 per cent treatment in the primary system.

The loss was due to a shutdown of a part of the secondary treatment equipment while repairs were being made. This occured on the first day of the month, Turner reported.

Operating Cost $2,152.

The total cost of operation at the plant during August was $2,152 with the cost per million gallons listed at $28, a decrease of $6 per million gallons under the previous month's figures.

An increase of 31,000 cubic feet in the production of gas was also shown in the report. During August gas production totaled 1,946,000 cubic feet as against 1,915,000 cubic feet during July.

Turner said that 74 per cent of the amount paid for power at the plant could have been saved last month had the city generator equipment to utilize the sewage gas now going to waste.

He also reported that there was 703,000 gallons of sludge on hand that could not be dried because the lack of drying equipment.

SYNOPSIS

At a cocktail party in Amy Crosby's home in Manhattan, Craig Madison introduces himself to Yvette Verne, a new movie star, after he overhears her quarreling violently with Billy Gomez, a man unknown to him. The actress soon calms down; and when Craig invites her to spend the week-end at the estate of his Uncle Harley Madison, in New Plymouth, Long Island, she becomes interested. She tells Craig she has heard of his uncle, who is regarded as an eccentric philanthropist. Craig says what his uncle needs most is sympathy, and that if she will be an understanding friend to the wealthy man it will help matters. Miss Verne thereupon accepts the invitation. Craig and his cousin, Tom Sheldon, both orphans, were brought up by their Uncle Harley, a widower. He lives with his sister, Cornelia, who helps him in his business; Hetty Garson, a spoiled housekeeper, and Ames, his secretary. Harley recently got the idea to rejuvenate the shabby town of New Plymouth, forming a syndicate for that purpose. The plan makes necessary a change in his will. He now intends to leave two-thirds of his wealth to the town and divide the remainder among his sister and nephews. Harley's plan to improve the town out of a common fund is opposed by those who want to be glorified by their donations. He is kept from resigning because that would throw Craig, the architect working on building plans, out of business. Harley wants to know the reason for the actions of the traitors to this cause.

CHAPTER III.

Although it seemed to Craig Madison that Friday would never come, the old earth kept up its stolid diurnal motion, and Friday did come.

Anita Boyce was the first of the house party to arrive. She came early in the afternoon, determined to get all of the occasion that she possibly could.

She was a pretty little widow, short of stature, and would have been dumpy of figure but for the extreme cleverness of her modiste. She had been a friend of Florence, Harley Madison's wife, and in their early married years the four had been a congenial quartet. Then Anita's husband died, and almost immediately she assumed that it was written in the Book of Fate she should marry Harley.

Harley didn't see eye to eye with her, but she still had hopes. She came frequently to Silver Hill; she used all her blandishments on a rather disinterested host. Anita was a strong believer in persistence.

So, when she arrived she went at once to the best suite, which had always been hers when she visited there, and was rejoiced to find it was still hers. For she had greatly feared it would be given over to the celebrity whose coming seemed to be a matter of great pride to the entire household.

Cornelia Madison's competent maid Jenny was a little absent-minded as she looked after Mrs. Boyce's belongings.

"Mind what you're about, Jenny," Anita said, crossly. "I suppose you're fair daft at the thought of having a motion picture actress to look after.

"I fear I am, Mrs. Boyce," and Jenny laughed good-naturedly. "I've seen the lady on the screen and she is so lovely I'm wondering if she can be like that in real life."

"You'll soon have a chance to find out. Dont' stand there crumpling that organdy shirtwaist in your hands!"

"No, ma'am," and Jenny tried to put her attention on her work.

Anita decided to wear a casual dinner gown, a very smart affair that was surely beyond the criticism of any glamour girl that ever stepped out of Hollywood. Jenny helped her into it with exclamations of approval. With a few final pokes and pats to her rolls of yellow hair, Anita went downstairs, paused in the doorway, with one hand on the door frame, and smilingly waited for applause.

Harley Madison knew his lines. "Welcome, my Anita!" he cried out and rose, greeting her with outstretched hands.

She knew Laura and George Lee, was delighted to meet a new man, Gifford Hale, and finally settled down beside her host with a rather definite air of proprietorship.

Harley, however, did not play up. He excused himself, saying he had important telephoning to attend to. Bidding Ames to come with him, he went to the study.

"How are things going in the town?" Anita asked as Craig Madison came over and sat beside her.

"Not so good. There was rather a stormy meeting a few nights ago, and its results are developing, slowly but unpleasantly."

"Is Harley upset?"

"Oh, he never gets upset, but it keeps him guessing."

"Tell me," Anita reached her goal at last, "tell me, Craig, about this fancy lady you've picked up. What is she like?"

"If you mean Yvette Verne, I don't like the term you use. She isn't like any one else; she's a goddess."

"Hard hit, are you?"

"Oh, everybody is who sees her."

Anita, who rather fancied herself one, was not pleased.

"You're not interesting to me any more. Go away and send that Hale man over here. He's looking at me as if he wanted to come." She smiled, to take away any hint of ill temper.

Craig went on the errand. Gifford Hale came duly, and Anita promptly made eyes at him.

Her eyes were large and blue, a beautiful cerulean, but with no shadows or reservations. Her carefully preserved blond beauty was all her fancy painted it, but the slightly injured look she habitually wore was fatal to her otherwise pretty charm. Her really golden hair was done by the most famous coiffeur, in the most stilted and artificial style.

Hetty, who had caught sight of her, told the cook that Mrs. Boyce's head looked like a hayfield, cut and dried.

Cornelia, with her gracious ease, rescued Gifford Hale and gave him over to Laura Lee, while she sent Tom Sheldon to play around with Anita.

Craig was outside patrolling the drive when, to his great relief and delight, Yvette's car appeared, far down the long driveway.

The girl was smiling to herself: she was going to be one of a house party, only one member of which she knew anything about. And she could scarcely be said to know much about him, for that short interview at Amy Crosby's meant little by way of acquaintance.

But, she told herself, a friendship with this Madison family might mean a lot to her, for she often felt the need of talking some other language than the jargon and argot of Hollywood. And since this opportunity presented itself, she was going to make the most of it, and she fully intended to become the joy of the party and the Golden Girl of Silver Hill.

She looked the part. The autumn brown tailored suit of soft wool twill she wore showed red glints here and there. A trifle of white at neck and sleeves and the smartest hat in the world were mere accessories to the charm of the lithe figure and vivid sentient face.

Barry, Miss Verne's capable chauffeur, brought the car to the imposing entrance of Silver Hill with a flourish.

"Pipe down, Barry," the girl said quietly. "This is ladies' day for me. I don't want to drive up like an army with banners."

Barry assumed a correct stolidity, and Craig Madison came smiling to greet his visitor.

"I don't think I'll dare show you to Uncle Harley," he said as he helped her out. "He'll eat you up!"

"Let me look round a minute first." The girl marvelled at the wide spacious lawns, the gigantic shade trees and the massed flower gardens, gay with riotous autumn blooms. "It's heavenly," she said. "I'm so glad I came."

She turned toward the big Colonial house, with additions that marred but did not completely spoil its proportions.

"No," Craig disagreed, "the place isn't grand; it's just comfortable and homey, that's all."

They went inside, and Yvette realized he spoke truly.

The great entrance hall had many old pieces of Colonial furniture, its polished surfaces rubbing elbows with some new pieces the young people had brought in, but somehow remaining harmonious through it all.

Craig led her on to the living room, where Harley Madison was the first to greet her. He came toward her, with oustretched hands.

"Miss Verne, you are very welcome," he said, a little formally, but with growing admiration. "I hope you will be glad you came. This is my sister Cornelia."

Miss Madison, tall and dignified, haughty and aristocratic, smiled far more cordially than she had meant to, for the girl's charm was irresistible. Cornelia was not a snob, quite, but she had resented this rash move of Craig's. To bring a movie actress into the hallowed halls of Silver Hill, where none but the elite had ever before been received, was a daring thing for even her favorite nephew to do.

Then Craig carried Yvette off for introductions, carefully putting Mrs. Lee before Mrs. Boyce, a slight for which Anita never forgave him.

Needless to say, Yvette made good. They all liked her. She was so natural, so spontaneous, so free from any trace of artificiality or any suggestion of the stage.

"I wondered," she said to Craig, "when I met you last Sunday, why you didn't live in New York. Now I know."

"You mean that as a place to live New Plymouth is preferable to New York?" This from Harley, who had managed to keep within speaking distance of the visitor ever since she came in.

"I'd have to think that over," she smiled at him. "But I can say right off, I can see how it would be to one who had his home here. You couldn't have a home like this in the city. Ooh, cocktails arrive! Let's sit right down here."

She chose a seat in the middle of a big divan, and somehow Harley Madison was on one side of her and Craig on the other.

Cornelia Madison looked at the group and then cast a humorous glance at Anita Boyce. But Anita didn't think it at all humorous, and being forced to put up with the attentions of either Tom Sheldon or Everett Ames, she was just about ready to go home.

Even Gifford Hale was hovering round the magnet, sitting on the arm of the davenport or on a hassock at the divinity's feet.

Yet Yvette was saying nothing of especial interest. It was the way she said it, the merry little laugh you found yourself waiting for, the quick, appreciative glance at a happy speech, and the glorious smile that flashed out now and then, when she was silent, and seemed to tell of happiness and content.

TRADERS DROP WAR ISSUES IN MIXED MARKET

No Definite Trend Evident in Nervous Session; Foreign Marts Steady.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Traders switched from the "war babies" in today's stock market and losses and gains were about evenly divided. Nervousness was marked and no definite trend was discernible.

Bonds inclined higher, but commodities were mixed with wheat rallying at Chicago. Foreign markets were steady.

Higher by fractions to about 3 most of the time were Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Public Service of New Jersey, New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, U. S. Rubber, Westinghouse Electric, General Electric, Dow Chemical, Johns-Manville, U. S. Gypsum, Eastman Kodak and Loft.

Losers of fractions to more than 3 points at the worst included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Kennecott, Du Pont, Allied Chemical and South Porto Rico Sugar.

Reports of considerable forward buying in various industries poured in.

Followers of the steel shares noted the "Iron Age" report that a "tremendous" volume of orders, almost unprecedented within so short a period, had been piling up on mill books since the outbreak of Europe's war.

Comparatively little of the heavy inflow of tonnage, it was asserted, came from abroad and while export business had expanded, it was not in the proportion of domestic buying, the chief hindrance being the shipping situation.

Panama Parley to Take Up Sea Rights of Neutrals

21 REPUBLICS TO DISCUSS 3 MAJOR TOPICS

Neutrality and Protection of Western Hemisphere Head Discussion Program.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The consultative conference of the 21 American republics at Panama City next week will take up the subject of neutral rights on the high seas in wartime, it was indicated today.

The Agenda for the conference was announced late yesterday after its approval by the governing board of the Pan-American union, composed of representatives of all the American nations.

Reports that both sides in the present European war had stopped United States ships lent urgency to the subject of neutral rights on the seas and the conference Agenda made certain that the question would be taken up vigorously.

The conference is the first ever called by the nations of this hemisphere to consider problems arising out of a war in another part of the world. It was provided for under the Declaration of Lima.

Three main topics will be discussed according to the Agenda announced yesterday. They are neutrality, "protection of the peace of the western hemisphere," and economic cooperation.

Under neutrality, the conference will consider the rights and duties of neutrals and belligerents in the present situation with a view to preserving the integral sovereignty and the peace of the nations of the western hemisphere.

Discuss 4 Steps.

Four steps to be taken "in common or individually," will be discussed:

"1. To suppress violations of neutrality and subversive activities by nationals of belligerent countries or others seeking to promote the interests of belligerent powers in the territory and jurisdiction of any or all of the American republics.

"2. To enforce the obligations of belligerent public and merchant vessels and aircraft in neutral territorial waters and areas.

"3. To safeguard the carrying on of legitimate international trade, commerce and communications of the American republics on the high seas, on land and in the air.

"4. To discharge neutral obligations toward belligerent nations.

WAR RUSH AIDS INDUSTRY HERE

a ton yesterday to $18, a record for the year.

Coupled with these improvements was a general increase in freight shipments and coal demands which had caused railroads throughout this part of the country to recall furloughed workers.

The eastern division of the Pennsylvania railroad of which Mansfield is a part re-opened two shops this week which have been closed for several months and added more than 2,000 workers.

Officials of the Ohio coal conference said the freight boom was caused by a shortage of reserve coal at industrial plants, and possibly by a demand for fuel to export.

Steel production at the Empire Sheet and Tinplate company shot up to 70 per cent of capacity today, an increase of 15 per cent in the past two weeks.

Domestic orders have advanced employment to 870 workers, James M. Hill, president said, and an additional 100 men will be put to work at the South plant next week when three more mills are placed in operation.

He predicted that at the present pace the company's output will be boosted to 85 or 90 per cent within the next 60 days. He expressed some concern over the availability of skilled workers necessary to man the equipment.

At the Ohio State Employment Service, Manager C. W. Handley said that railroad car workers were in demand and that jobs for skilled workers had increased 25 per cent in recent weeks. The seasonal demand for farm labor also was being maintained.

He said that during the first 11 days of this month 100 workers had been found jobs as compared with 40 persons placed in employment during the same period last month.

Relief officials reported a "slight" lightening of the relief load, pointing out that it was "unusual" that the seasonal increase expected in September had not yet been shown. They said that a sharp decrease would have been noted but for WPA layoffs due to the 18-month ruling by the government which had added additional families to the rolls.

Mahoning Steel Spurts.

Youngstown reported that Mahoning valley steel productions will jump another six points to 70 per cent at mid-week and all other steel producers will increase operations.

With two additional blast furnaces added this week, iron production also shows a big increase. Another furnace is being hastily prepared for operation.

Some Cleveland tool making plants attributed their gains largely to orders from abroad, the Automatic Machine company having doubled its force producing tools used in manufacturing airplane parts.

Both the Warner and Swasey and National Acme plants there were operating 24 hours a day, the latter reporting 1,800 employed, 300 above normal.

Metal trades firms in Cincinnati and Columbus also reported employment increases, although the gains were not traced to the war. At Canton Timken Roller Bearing company officials listed operations at 70 per cent of capacity, an advance in recent weeks from a summer low of 35 per cent.

Operations at Republic Steel corporation units in Canton and Massillon have climbed from a similar low to 65 per cent of capacity while the firm's Cleveland plant reported operating at 90 per cent of capacity.

August Figures Slump.

Meanwhile the Chamber of Commerce business review for Mansfield for August showed decreases in four lines of business although substantial gains for all lines were recorded for the first eight months of this year.

Automobile registration which fell off nine per cent during August was up 76 per cent at the end of eight months.

Bank clearings with a three per cent decrease last month totaled 55 millions at the end of eight months as compared with 48 millions for the first eight months of 1938.

A seven per cent drop in building valuations in August cut the eight-month total to a 149 per cent above the corresponding period in 1938. Valuations so far this year totaled $1,799,099 as against $698,099 for the same period in 1938.

NLRB CLEARS OHIO BRASS OF UNION DISCRIMINATION CHARGE

The National Labor Relations board today dismissed a charge that the Ohio Brass company had discriminated against Tony Colace, an employe, for union activity.

The board's ruling was based on evidence taken during a lengthy hearing in Mansfield more than a year ago before NLRB representatives. Several months after the hearing, the board recommended that the company re-hire Colace who had been dismissed.

Colace, however, has not been re-instated and has not been employed by the company since the hearing last year, company officials said.

The charge of discrimination against the Mansfield firm was filed by the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers union, a CIO affiliate. It contended that Colace was discharged because he was active in behalf of the union.

Although the NLRB made no finding against the Mansfield firm, it ordered the company today to "stop interfering" with its employes' rights to organize, news dispatches from Washington said.

G. L. Draffan, vice president in charge of operations at the company's plant, said today that officials of the firm had received no notice of the labor board's ruling.

Stambaugh refused to reveal the source of information on a story he had written on gambling conditions. Harold Hartley, managing editor of the Times, said he thought Stambaugh had violated the law as it exists.

"We propose to change that law to make information given reporters privileged," Hartley said. "We are going to protect our sources of information, and as good citizens, we wish to obey the law.

"As a matter of fact, seven states already have this law protecting reporters, as it protects doctors and attorneys. We are going to enlist the aid of other newspapers to bring about passage in Ohio of such a law."

BRITAIN SEES U. S. PLEDGE AS AID TO CANADA

Roosevelt Repeats Assurance U. S. 'Won't Stand Idly By' If Dominion's Invaded.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt has repeated his assurance that the people of the United States would not be idle if Canada were invaded and the British government cites that statement as putting the Dominion today in a "special position."

The British government apparently regards Mr. Roosevelt's statement as a factor in defense against invasion of the Dominion sector of the Empire.

Developments in the first fortnight of the European war directed attention to the Monroe Doctrine and Mr. Roosevelt's speech on Aug. 18, 1938 at Kingston, Ont., in which he said:

"The Dominion of Canada is part of the sisterhood of the British Empire. I give you assurance that the people of the United States will not stand idly by if the Domination of Canadian soil is threatened by any other empire."

He reiterated that sentiment yesterday, explaining that it was nothing new—not extension—of the Monroe Doctrine. Examination of previous interpretations supports Mr. Roosevelt's contention that the Doctrine long has extended to all parts of the western hemisphere. Point No. 1 in an analysis of the Doctrine by former Undersecretary of State J. Reuben Clark published 11 years ago emphasizes the hemisphere-wide scope of the document. Clark's first point was:

"The American continents were not subject to colonization by any European power. This in terms certainly includes North and South America. Impliedly, colonization is considered antagonistic or detrimental to the free and independent conditions which they, the American continents, have assumed and maintained. The rights and interests of the United States were involved in this principle."

After the British government officially interpreted Mr. Roosevelt's Kingston speech as placing Canada in a "special position" with respect to defense, he was asked about it yesterday at his press conference. Mr. Roosevelt said his speech was nothing new in relation to the Monroe Doctrine but was a restatement of policy which had grown up with that document in the past 120 years. It was a policy of resisting not only trans-oceanic invasion of the sovereignty of any of the western hemisphere republics but opposition, as well, to the transfer of colonial authority in this hemisphere from one trans-oceanic power to another—presumably by force.

Examination of precedents indicates that while Mr. Roosevelt's interpretation—and those of preceding presidents—were forceful and usually compelling factors in establishing our policy under the Doctrine, no responsibility actually attaches to the United States for carrying out any phase of the Doctrine policy. It is what is known as a unilateral or one-sided policy laid down, in this instance, by President Monroe and his successors.

WHAT TO DO FOR ECZEMA ITCHING AND BURNING

Wash the affected parts with Resinol Soap and warm water to soften scales and crusts. Resinol Soap is suggested because it contains no excess of free alkali, and cleanses the tender skin so carefully. Dry by patting with a soft cloth—do not rub.

Many doctors recommend an oily ointment because it holds the medication in contact with the irritated skin surface, giving prolonged action. Resinol Ointment meets this requirement, and does even more. For nearly 45 years it has been—and still is—successfully used to relieve quickly the itching and burning of eczema. It contains soothing ingredients that aid healing.

Use Resinol Ointment today and enjoy comfort tomorrow. Get a jar, also a cake of Resinol Soap, at any drug store. For free sample, write to Resinol, Dept. 87, Baltimore, Md.

O. A. Cox presided for the meeting and all members were present. The board accepted the bond of the bus drivers and authorized the purchasing committee to purchase four dozen folding chairs for the school cafeteria.

The appointment of Miss Eleanor Iman as a teacher for junior high school was also approved by the board. Miss Iman began her duties Monday.

SUCKER SINKS

Cuyahoga River Navigation Is Blocked by Mishap.

CLEVELAND — (UP) — Navigation on the Cuyahoga river here was almost blocked today as marine salvage experts rushed plans for raising the sand sucker Hydro, which sank in 22 feet of water off the Baltimore & Ohio railroad docks.

The Hydro, loaded with 1200 tons of sand, went down in the main channel at 5:10 a. m., slightly more than six hours after her bow was pierced when she struck an obstruction while moving upstream.

Rivermen believed it will take several days to raise or drag the 1292-ton steel-hulled vessel out of the channel to permit passage of other boats. Only tugs and small craft were able to get past this forenoon.

AMERICANS ON ATHENIA TELL OF TORPEDOING

Reach New York, Describe Nights of Horror Aboard U. S. Bound Ship.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Women and children screamed on the darkened, listing decks of the doomed liner Athenia and an officer ordered a few panicky stewards to "get the hell out of these lifeboats," the first survivors of the Athenia sinking to reach New York said today.

Damon Boynton, 31, a member of Cornell university faculty at Ithaca, N. Y., told the story today when he returned on the liner Cameronia.

Boynton said he believed the Athenia was torpedoed by a submarine. After he was rescued by the British Destroyer Electra, he said, a member of the crew told him the submarine had been destroyed by depth bombs dropped by another destroyer.

"I think it is logical and I believe it," said Boynton.

He described the Athenia's death blow as a "muffled explosion like a cannon cracker going off in a 50-gallon drum."

Sixty per cent of the Cameronia's 786 passengers were seasick the first three days out, when a constant zig-zag to avoid submarines added to the roughness of the voyage.

Four liners with a total of 4,245 passengers from Europe were expected to arrive tomorrow. Only one of them, the Aquitania, with 1,633 passengers, is a ship of a belligerent nation.

Other ships expected today were the White Star Liner Van Dyck, with 500 passengers, and the Holland-America Liner Westernland with 560.

OHIOANS DESCRIBE TRIP

NEW YORK—(AP)—Two Ohioans who arrived today on the British liner Cameronia said "tenseness among the passengers was terrible" during the voyage from Europe.

"This morning was the first time we've seen any smiles on the ship," said Dr. Raymond Holzback of Salem, O., who returned with his wife.

"We sighted no submarines coming over but the blackouts every night were the worst part of the trip," he said. "Parents kept their children up all night and others refused to take their clothes off. The crew was very excited, too, and many of them were afraid to go back.

"We left Glasgow Sept. 5 with a convoy of destroyers but after a few hours we went our own way," said Dr. Holzback. "The Cameronia was white when we left but was painted gray during the voyage."

Unable to cash travelers' checks, Dr. Holzback arrived with only 25 cents in his pocket.

POLES BATTLE OUT OF 'TRAP,' ATTACK NAZIS

meat rations to one pound a week in the Berlin area, confiscated rubber tires on vehicles not specifically authorized and mobilized German youth to work on the farms.

On the western front, the French troops pressing into the Rhineland on both sides of Saarbruecken reported that they had consolidated their positions and were almost in a position for direct attack on the main German west wall (Siegfried line) fortifications.

Large scale operations against the Germans may be expected at any time, it was said in Paris, as a result of the successful French operaions leading up to the Saar river in German territory. German artillery laid down a heavy fire on the French positions without effect, the reports said, and a new French advance was underway in the Seirck sector.

French sources reported that Adolf Hitler had about 2,250,000 men under arms, with a million each on the western and eastern fronts.

Following yesterday's meeting of the Allied supreme war council on French soil, with British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain present, the British house of commons awaited a statement by the prime minister regarding progress of the war. The government was under severe criticism for its censorship of news and the subject was due for debate in parliament.

Urge Farmers to Plant.

Britain's preparations for at least three years of war were pushed by a government appeal to farmers to go on a war time basis similar to that which existed during the World war, when the country estates of England were ploughed up for wheat fields.

In Rome, it was understood that Italy soon would further clarify her neutral position and Nazis believed that Premier Benito Mussolini was likely to undertake some new diplomatic move toward ending the war if any hope could be found of penetrating the declared determination of Britain and France to fight to the end against the Hitler regime.

but one that had to be done before there could be any peace in Europe.

So they began their preparations. I think every city and town has its hidden caves where children and women can be rushed in case of a raid by land or air. Every man, woman and child has a gas mask. Kindergartens and day schools have been arranged where children can be cared for while their mothers work. All able bodied women have been assigned their work—in munition factories, industrial plants, business places, hospitals and making clothes for soldiers.

"Every able bodied man between the ages of 21 and 50 have been taken into service, the older ones to do work in hospitals and around camp, and those under 21 are being given training. We hope the war will end quickly with the complete wiping out of Hitler but if it should go on for a long time, the people of France are prepared."

There is no ill feeling or bitterness between the people of France and Germany, Mrs. Hoyer declares.

"In 1914 and throughout the World war, there was a strong feeling between the two people," she said, "but not this time. There is only rage at Hitler and his handful of war lords. My people have the feeling that the Germans are as helpless as the rest of the world; and there is a feeling of pity for them. They have worked so hard and have had so much trouble—and this war is not of their making. They are at the mercy of the war lords of Germany."

The French government, she explained, pays its women and children a very small pension while the men are at war. For instance her sister and a child receive an amount equivalent to 15 cents a day in United States money. In addition to this those who can work are paid wages.

The trip across the Atlantic was rather terrifying, Mrs. Hoyer said. No lights were permitted on the ship, no radios, and much of the time they were enveloped in fog. They did not know that war had been declared until they were safe in American waters, and although officers tried to keep news of the torpeding of the S. S. Athenia from them, the news came over the radio and word of it leaked out, she added.

The crew was not very good natured about risking the ship and their lives to return Americans to their country, because there already is feeling about America staying out of the war," she said. "Before the boat docked at New York a large purse was taken up among passengers to reward the members of the crew."

BRITISH TROOPS ENTER FIGHTING; FRENCH GAINING

nounced "great activity" yesterday by the air forces of both sides, French reports said sky skirmishes were continuing today.

These reports said three German planes were brought down while the French suffered "very small losses."

The war ministry communique for this morning reported a "continuation of reaction of the artillery in the course of the night." The communique referred briefly to "great activity here and there" by the air forces of both sides.

Between the opposing guns lay stubble fields—the harvest has been gathered. The land was domed and pitted with pillboxes and machine-gun nests, vulnerable only to direct hits from mortars. That was the scene as described in advices through Basel.

French sources said their army had advanced only a few thousand yards a day in some sectors where violent fighting marked every action. Roads shattered by German mines and artillery had to be repaired. Advance units often had to await nightfall to fortify their positions for the protection of troops moving up behind them.

The advance on Saarbruecken was said to have hammered a wedge in the Siegfried line at its strongest point. Fall of the city would give the French control of the rich Saar mining basin, one of the world's most productive coal fields.

Saarbruecken, important railroad junction, lies about midway on a 100-mile front between the Moselle and Rhine rivers on France's northeastern boundary—northern wing of the western front.

East of Saarbruecken the French reported cutting important German communications and shutting off reinforcements with an artillery barrage.

To the northwest of the city, in a pocket formed by the Luxembourg and German borders, the French were said to be meeting fierce resistance. French and German infantrymen clashed in bayonet fighting. Comparatively unseasoned German reservists in that sector were said to have been replaced by veterans.

A dispatch from Basel, Switzerland, described the artillery warfare near Luxembourg as one of the greatest duels in history. The Moselle valley had been converted into one of the most heavily fortified regions in the world with the great Sierck forts, on the French side, facing the German Trassen area.

The main Siegfried line positions lie some seven miles behind Saarbruecken, and apparently the heavy German shellfire came from them. The French fire in this district was laid down along a two-mile front through the eastern suburbs of the city to the aviation field, which had been a German military air base.

The village of St. Arnual, midway between Saarbruecken and the airfield, caught the heaviest part of the French bombardment.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1939.

Man is credited with being the only animal that reasons—but this does not account for continuance of wars.

Word comes that total 1938 tax collections in the United States amounted to $114.09 for each man, woman and child—but the children probably depended on Dad to look after their payments.

End of Hitlerism War's Objective

GREAT BRITAIN, through its most impressive spokesmen, has made it quite clear that no peace is possible under terms that might be proposed by Hitler following his conquest of Poland, however successful Nazi military strenth may be in overpowering the weaker nation.

Latest to express Great Britain's determined stand is Anthony Eden, former foreign secretary now returned to the war cabinet as dominions secretary.

"There can be no lasting peace until Naziism, and all that it stands for in oppression, cruelty and broken faith, is banished from the earth," said Secretary Eden, "For us there will be no turning back. This is an issue that admits no compromise."

By means of leaflet "bombardments" Great Britain has endeavored to acquaint the German people that the war is not against them, but against intolerable conditions brought about by the ruthless reign of Hitler and his cohorts.

It is unthinkable that mere show of greater force than could be mustered by Poland should be regarded as entitling the stronger power to take over the conquered territory. That may have been the accepted procedure of earlier times but it does not fit into the picture of modern human relationships or the present conception of international rights.

There would be no time, for instance, when Germany on the one side, and Russia on the other, could not overpower and divide Poland, in the absence of intervention by other nations.

While the attitude of Russia, following its pact with Germany, has not yet been made clear, it would be quite reasonable to assume that dismemberment of Poland might result in a split-up of the spoils between Nazi Germany and Communist Russia, which would serve to intensify rather than relieve the friction that has been evident in Europe for many years.

Although this is rightly regarded as "Europe's war," its outcome cannot fail to have far-reaching effects on all other parts of the world and it is gratifying to learn that issues are not to be determined by Hitler's demonstration of at least temporarily superior fighting strength in Poland.

Odd how walking around the golf course seems so much easier than walking to work.

Recalling Frank Carpenter

RECOLLECTIONS of earlier Mansfield are brought to mind by nomination of the late Frank G. Carpenter to a place in Ohio journalism's Hall of Fame.

Although born on East Third street in Mansfield, May 8, 1855, Frank Carpenter's association with this city extended only into young manhood and so much of his lifetime was devoted to world travel that it was but occasionally that he visited here.

Recognized for his ability as a newspaper writer, with a number of years devoted to Washington correspondence, it is as the writer of "Carpenter's Readers," long used as school textbooks and even yet found in many home libraries, that Mr. Carpenter attained greatest prominence. Judged as of their time, the Carpenter Readers probably gave a clearer insight into the habits, customs and incidents of everyday life in many countries than any other books then available.

His death occurred in Nanking, China, June 18, 1924, and a massive marble slab, bearing a fitting tribute, marks his burial place in Mansfield cemetery.

Son of George F. Carpenter, Richland county native, Civil war veteran and long engaged in the practice of law in Mansfield, and brother of the well-remembered and highly esteemed Reid Carpenter, it is gratifying to Mansfield that another of its native sons should be accorded consideration for a lasting place in Ohio history.

Toll Nuisance Increasing

A NEW YORK paper tells how an Illinois motorist bound for New England was "among those privileged to pay the ten-cent toll on the Hutchinson River Parkway" the other day. That would have been no great hardship in itself. But it happened that the motorist had already paid 50 cents to get through the Holland tunnel, 10 cents to cross the Henry Hudson bridge, and was just about to pay 10 cents more for the use of the Merritt Parkway.

Here is a rather vivid picture of what is happening, to some degree, in a surprising number of American communities lately. It is pleasant to use those fine smooth, modern highways, but the reversion to a toll charge at every turn can scarcely be regarded as a progressive step in this motorized age.

Don't Be a Charlie McCarthy!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SOMEONE once said that many of us would never fall in love if we didn't happen to hear other people talking about it. Silly? No, the most profound truth. A genuine emotion is are rare as a purple cow. Most of us spend three-quarters of our time being Charlie McCarthys . . . echoing the patter, copying the poses, mimicking the moods of others!

DOING THE THING WE THINK WE OUGHT TO DO INSTEAD OF THE THING THAT SPRINGS SPONTANEOUSLY FROM OUR HEARTS.

Out of the hundreds of letters which come to this desk daily, at least a score ask the same question: "How can I know I'm in love?" Obviously these muddled mortals believe that love, like measles, is always accompanied by certain symptoms. As a matter of fact, love is as diversified in its expression as the hearts which harbor it. No two people ARE alike—and no two people FEEL alike about anything on earth.

Take this business of romance, for example. Some of us react to it with a tremendous amount of emotion. We heave like an earthquake, grow dizzy, delirious, go racing around like a sailor on his first shore leave. Yet others feel only a pleasantly quickened interest in their objects of affection, and added friendliness. Yet one form of love is as sincere as the other, as reliable and lasting.

No one can tell you how YOU should feel about anything. But you can bet your last nickel on this: THE ONLY FEELINGS WHICH ARE POWERFUL OR CONVINCING ARE THOSE WHICH YOU, YOURSELF, FEEL NATURALLY WITHOUT ANY MIMICKRY OR COMPULSION.

The attitudes and emotions which you copy have no life in them. They may impress the Other Fellow temporarily, but he soon sees through the fake, and despises you accordingly. Which is a pity. For, chances are, you have what it takes to win real admiration, if you could only make the Other Fellow realize it. But there's the cruel irony of your situation—no one gives you credit. You long for love, hunger for admiration and respect, spend feverish years trying to put yourself across. You work and scheme, struggle and sacrifice, but all in vain. Why—WHY? Why do you fail, where others seem to succeed without the slightest effort?

WHAT HAVE THOSE TRIUMPHANT ONES GOT THAT YOU HAVEN'T?

They have SINCERITY.

THEY DARE TO BE THEMSELVES.

And in a society of cowards and phonies, that is the rarest of all roles . . . the most convincing of all methods. For if you wish the world to believe in you, you must first believe in yourself. And if you are afraid to believe in yourself and be yourself, how can you possibly expect others to bet their money on you?

TO BE ONE'S OWN SELF AND EXPRESS ONE'S OWN FEELINGS—that is the secret of all power. Great people are always genuine people. There is no affectation about them. Them may be eccentric, limited, lacking in many desirable ways. But they bear about them that all-compelling stamp of AUTHENTICITY. They are what they are—and you can take them or leave them. But 99 out of 100 people take them and ask for more—so great is our need for honesty, our respect for courage.

DON'T BE A CHARLIE McCARTHY! DARE TO SPEAK YOUR OWN LINES, MAKE YOUR OWN GESTURES!

President Roosevelt's letter to a convention of Federal employes forecasting expansion of the "competitive civil service system" is the first acknowledgement by him that his Administration's record on civil service is not all that it should be.

Its record of patronage appointments has exceeded any in the nation's history. Heretofore, however, the President has been accustomed to take no little credit for his executive orders which latterly have expanded the civil service by "covering in" incumbent Democrats without examination.

His reference in the letter to future expansion of the "competitive" civil service acknowledges that he knows as well as anyone the difference between this and expansion by the covering-in process.—Detroit News.

Health And Diet

Vitamins May Be Overdone.

—By DR. CLENDENING

RECENTLY we expressed the opinion that the use of concentrated vitamins was being carried too far. Not content to depend on the vitamins that any well-balanced diet contains, we are urged to take concentrated vitamin tablets and fortified foods.

Processed food manufacturers, fearing the criticism that their products would be de-vitamized, have made a great variety of fortified products available—several kinds of vitamin D milk, canned and natural; vitamin A added to oleomargarine, and so on.

Now, while everyone agrees that vitamins are necessary to prevent deficiency diseases and for perfect health, nobody knows how much vitamin there ought to be. And what I did not suggest the other day was that perhaps it is possible to get too much vitamin, just as it is possible to get too much of a drug.

Support For View.

Protests coming from high authorities and presented before the Pacific Science congress recently would tend to support such a view.

Dr. Paul Gyory, of the Western Reserve School of Medicine, said that only a few vitamins were available in pure form. There may be hundreds of active vitamins we do not know about. By fortifying foods with the known vitamins, we may be upsetting the whole vitamin equilibrium.

To make an analogy, if we knew of sugar only among the three fundamental dietary principles, we might add it artificially to foods, knowing it is necessary, but this would cut down the proportion of equally necessary proteins and fats, perhaps to dangerous levels.

Vitamin D One.

The inclusion of too much vitamin of one kind may actually activate deficiency diseases hitherto latent.

Vitamin D, of all the vitamins, is the one that can probably be pushed too much.

Vitamin D is definitely needed, at least by children, to prevent rickets. It is not present in large quantities in ordinary foods. In infant feeding cod-liver oil is used for its vitamin D content to supplement the ordinary diet. It can be manufactured by the human body on its own, by exposure to sunlight. The sunlight forms vitamin D in the skin.

This is all very well, and granted it is necessary, but Dr. Agdhur, of Upsala, Sweden, reports cases of children who had functional heart disturbances as a result of too much cod-liver oil.

Kidney Stone.

When the diet contains too much vitamin D, exposure to sun may bring about conditions due to excess of the vitamin D. Kidney stone is known to occur in tropical countries, such as India, with which greater frequency than in less sunny climates.

Dr. Russell Wilder, who represented the Council on Foods of the American Medical association, felt that only limited fortification should be allowed. Processed flour can be given enough vitamin B to bring it back to the amount natural wholewheat would have. Discriminating fortification of milk with vitamin D is under consideration. And fortification of oleomargarine with vitamin A, in order to make it equivalent to butter, is also allowable.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—In the restaurant tonight Pierre, the waiter, came up to me and said, "Have you seen Mr. Simms? I went to see him this afternoon and took him a bottle of wine."

Right then and there I was kicked in the shins by the boots of my conscience, because I had not been down to see Simms. I hadn't seen him since he got back to New York. He is a friend of mine, a radio man. He is in a bad way at one of the hospitals . . . I say a bad way—he isn't going to die, but in a measure, to some people at least, it is almost as bad as that . . . Something became wrong with his eyes, and they operated . . . And now they know the operation isn't going to do much good.

This isn't meant to be a sentimental story, and if I should write anything sentimental about Simms he would resent it and perhaps heave that wine bottle at me. He will, I think, still be able, after a long, long while, to see out of one of his eyes . . . But the other one is gone and the remaining one is impaired.

NOW this waiter who went to see Simms and who carried him a bottle of wine, and who perhaps made an otherwise dreary afternoon one of pleasure for him, knows Simms only because Simms used to dine there with a fair degree of regularity. Simms got to know Pierre personally. He is the sort who can walk into any restaurant and call the waiters by name. Some people are like that. They say you never really know a restaurant until you can call the waiters by their names.

But the thought kept coming back to me that here I am, walking about the street, feeling good, lazy, perhaps, but with two good legs and two good eyes and plenty of time, and yet I haven't been near Simms, who is my friend.

Yet this waiter, who must rise early and work late and who perhaps purchased that wine at a sacrifice to himself, had taken a couple of hours off from his job, had got on a bus, and then a subway, and had gone from 54th street way downtown to the further east side, into a hospital and into a room where a man lay with big thick bandages over his face with nothing to do but lie there and try not to think.

It isn't good for a man to think too much sometimes. And I imagine Pierre did more for him than the doctors could have done by simply breeking in . . . I can hear him now: "Well, for goodness sake! Well, my goodness! Well, gee! this is Pierre, I heard you were back and I kind of thought I'd . . .

ONE time I sat in a duck blind with Simms on a bitter cold morning overlooking the Sound, and shot mallards and smoked pipes and told big round stories that I thought were reminiscences but which may have been lies . . . Simms is a good talker . . . He WAS a good shot . . . He picked up the knack in Texas . . . He used to go down there when he was a little boy, and he sort of grew up with it . . . Then he went to the University of Tennessee, and after that he drifted to New York and into radio . . .

I can't say that I enjoyed my dinner very much tonight, although when I went into the restaurant I was hungry, and the steak that Pierre brought me could hardly have been improved upon . . . That's what you get by being able to call waiters by their names . . . Sometimes they tell you things that upset you.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Cordell Hull did not shout it from the house-tops, but up until the last hour before the neutrality embargo went into effect, he was permitting the shipment of arms to Germany despite the U. S. treaty with Berlin which states that "the importation into Germany of arms, ammunition and war materials of every kind shall be strictly prohibited."

Several members of the cabinet had vigorously protested Mr. Hull's stand, while various members of congress also had opposed him. However, Mr. Hull contended that since the treaty only prohibited the "importation" of arms, he was not violating the treaty, though Germany was.

Senaor Nye, one of the authors of the Neutrality Act, countered that the act specifically stated that no arms should be shipped "in violation of any treaty." Nye claimed that it made no difference which side violated the treaty, but only that the treaty was violated.

At one time Mr. Hull's cabinet colleagues got so aroused that they asked the justice department for an opinion whether he was violating the treaty. Thereupon the secretary of state telephoned Attorney General Frank Murphy urging that the justice department uphold him. He explained that this was a very personal issue and said he would be greatly embarrassed if the opinions were against him.

In other words, the secretary of state put a personal issue ahead of a national issue, and continued to ship arms to Germany even though it was obvious to all, and must have been obvious to him, that Hitler was preparing to use these arms to destroy the peace of the world.

Flowers for Mrs. Hull.

WHEN Mrs. Cordell Hull had a birthday last week, she received an unexpected bouquet of flowers from the telephone operators who work the state department switchboard.

The girls do not know Mrs. Hull personally, but they know her voice and they like it. When she calls the secretary's office, she chats with them before the connection is made and says, "How are my girls?"

When the birthday came around, her girls remembered her.

French Secret Tanks.

REASON why the French are breaking into the Siegfried Line is that they have developed a new mountain tank, heavily armored, which is capable of going straight up to a German pill-box and standing over it while it plants mines alongside, almost as if it were driving piles.

After planting the mines, the tank withdraws and the mines blow up the pill-box.

One of the most important defenses of the Siegfried Line is a series of small pill-boxes containing machine gunners. They scarcely protrude above the ground, are an almost impossible target for artillery, and wreak deadly havoc upon infantry. But the French tank seems to have solved the problem.

The Siegfried Line also has many "tank traps" and hidden electric mines, so that the French may encounter increased difficulty as they progress farther into the defenses.

American Tanks.

DURING the Spanish civil war, the Moors discovered one way to destroy tanks, namely to hug the ground until the tank got so close that its guns could not be operated against them.

At this point, the Moors threw hand grenades under the tank, and blew it to pieces.

The U. S. army experimented with this gunnery defect at the Aberdeen proving grounds recently, and pondered the question of putting armored bottoms on the tanks. However, the army concluded that the loss of a few tanks and men was not worth the extra expense!

Lame Duck Patriots.

THE extent to which banished lame ducks, under the cry of war emergency, are being restored to high place in the administration is breath-taking.

Dynamic Assistant War Secretary Louis Johnson started the ball rolling by loading up the powerful war resources board with four personal and business associates of J. P. Morgan and company. The last named member of this group, John Hancock of Lehman Brothers' banking firm, was practically chased out of official Washington last winter by then SEC Chairman William Douglas for attempting to scuttle the agency.

But now Secretary Morgenthau, 48 hours after he got back to his desk breathless from Norway, proudly announced the establishment of a personal brain-trust — of which two members were previously bounced from the treasury.

The first of the two, dapper, mustachioed Earl Bailie, officer of J. W. Seligman and company, was named under secretary of the treasury by Morgenthau in November, 1933. But he never held the job. The Pecora banking investigation had disclosed that Seligman and company had contributed some $450,000 to the son of the Peruvian president to float $90,000,000 worth of bonds, and when Bailie's appointment was sent to the senate, the opposition became so menacing that his name was withdrawn and he left the treasury.

Second member of the Morgenthau war-brains is Jacob Viner, professor of economics at the University of Chicago, who was a part-time Morgenthau adviser until the spring of 1938, when he blew up with a bang as loud as the explosion of his business boom prognostication.

It was Viner who urged the drastic spending curtailment which New Deal economists say was responsible for the depression of 1937. They had demanded continued spending, but Viner airily predicted a business boom by spring.

When the boom never materialized, the red-faced Morgenthau slipped over to the spending group, while Viner slipped back to the University of Chicago. Now both Viner and Bailie are back in the treasury as Henry's intimate counselors.

NOTE: Tom K. Smith, leading St. Louis banker and another ex-treasury assistant appointed by Morgenthau as one of his brain trustes, has repeatedly denounced New Deal policies.

Words of the Wise

Good nature, like a beet, collects honey from every herb. Ill nature, like the spider, sucks poison from the sweetest flower.—H. W. Beecher.

Thorn Apples

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I HAVE never seen so many white thorn trees as grow around this section. In the woodlands, the fence rows, and often in the open fields they stand, serene. The roving cattle in the pasture disturb them little. The heavy summer storms may bend them low and even dash their flexing tops upon the ground, but when the wind abates, they stand as firm and straight as ever.

In spring the pinkish, bursting buds look, from a distance, like small luscious fruits, the small green hardened clusters of later growth are not visible to the casual eye. Even without the pruning knife, the top grows into a spreading shapely tree, close matted with protecting thorns. The blue bird, the robin and the pewee build their nest within its branches, secure from hawks and owls and even common house cats, who rarely risk a plunge into such thick, sharp barriers.

This shapely tree, like the apple, pear and quince, is a member of the rose family. Twice I have taken a scion from a quince tree and grafted it upon a thrifty thorn. It grew marvelously and in three years' time each adopted branch had the finest yellow fruit I ever saw. The quince is the best choice for grafting, since it grows as slowly as its host.

This fall, north of our home, I counted ten trees along an abandoned lane. They were tall and vigorous, their leaves gray from age, dust and soot. The twisted trunks were dark and the lower branches spread gracefully above the shaded ground. They seemed immune from scale and blight, such as racks our cultivated fruits.

For several weeks I watched the picture change, as gradually the small secluded knots of green berrylike fruit changed to showy tempting clusters of scarlet. Now they peep beyond the grayish greenness of the leaves, and shine along the full length of the winding abandoned trail, vivid and colorful in the autumn sun.

I gathered the largest reddest fruit and tasted the rich, spongy pulp that I found beneath the highly colored covering. It was wild, but satisfying. These were the first wild apples of the primitive forests, the forebears of our present day fruitful orchards.

He Is An American

Editor's Note—Reproduced from the New York Sun, the following gives an idea of privileges enjoyed by an American, many of which are withheld from people in other countries. It is worthy of thoughtful reading—and passing along to someone who may not appreciate his good fortune.

* * *

HE IS an American.

He hears an airplane overhead, and if he looks up at all does so in curiosity, neither in fear nor in the hope of seeing a protector.

His wife goes marketing, and her purchases are limited by her needs, her tastes, her budget, but not by decree.

He comes home of an evening through streets which are well lighted, not dimly in blue.

He reads his newspaper and knows that what it says is not concocted by a bureau, but an honest untrammeled effort to present the truth.

He has never had a gas mask on.

He has never been in a bombproof shelter.

He belongs to such fraternal organizations and clubs as he wishes.

He adheres to a political party to the extent that he desires—the dominant one, if that be his choice, but with the distinct reservation that he may criticize any of its policies with all the vigor which to him seems proper—any other as his convictions dictate, even, if it be his decision, one which holds that the theory of government of the country is wrong and should be scrapped.

He does not believe, if his party is out of power, that the only way in which it can get into power is through a bloody revolution.

He converses with friends, even with chance acquaintances, expressing freely his opinion on any subject, without fear.

He does not expect his mail to be opened between posting and receipt, nor his telephone to be tapped.

He changes his place of dwelling, and does not report so doing to the police.

He has not registered with the police.

He carries an identification card only in case he should be the victim of a traffic accident.

He thinks of his neighbors across international borders—of those to the north as though they were across a state line, rather than as foreigners—of those to the south more as strangers since they speak a language different from his, and with the knowledge that there are now matters of difference between his government and theirs, but of neither with an expectancy of war.

He worships God in the fashion of his choice, without let.

His children are with him in his home, neither removed to a place of greater safety, if young, nor, if older, ordered to serve the state with sacrifice of limb or life.

He has his problems, his troubles, his uncertainties, but all others are not overshadowed by the imminence of battle and sudden death.

He should struggle to preserve his Americanism with its priceless privileges.

He is a fortunate man.

He is an American.

THEATERS

Sheridan at Madison.

After all the build-up of Ann Sheridan as their "oomph girl" Warner Brothers have given her only one spot in their recently announced program of 25 new pictures. She's to co-star with George Raft in "Torrid Zone." She plays one of the four leading roles in "Indianapolis Speedway," and is seen as the girl who wasn't good for an' auto racer's kid brother, but who married him in spite of everything. Pat O'Brien is the champion racer. Gale Page appears opposite him and John Payne plays the brother. This, with "Hawaiian Nights," makes up the Madison bill through Thursday.

"Rains" Ends Thursday.

A lot of Mansfielders are seeing "The Rains Came" for the second time this week. This is especially true of those who saw it on the opening night. A lot of details that escaped one the first night stand out at a second view of the film. One of the bits that goes unnoticed by many is the connection between the impeccable Mr. Bannerjee, the suave and polished host at the party the night of the earthquake, and the wailing native on the porch the next morning. Those who read the book will recall that Bannerjee shed his European civilization like an old coat when the disaster came and "went native." Joseph Schildkraut does an excellent job in this minor role. The "Rains" engagement at the Ohio ends Thursday night.

Olivier Starred.

The romantic star of "Wuthering Heights," Laurence Olivier, is seen in a new picture turned out by Columbia. It is "Clouds Over Europe," in which a debonair young pilot stages a battle of wits with England's most famous beauty, and Europe's most notorious nest of spies. Valerie Hobson is the girl in this attraction at the Park theater. Frankie Darro in "Irish Luck" is also shown through the last half of the week.

Inspired By Wife.

Not until 20th Century-Fox made "The Life of Alexander Graham Bell" was it generally known that the telephone was invented as the result of a young inventor's grief and distress because the beautiful woman he loved was partially deaf. Don Ameche plays the man who invented the telephone, Loretta Young is seen as his wife, and Henry Fonda is the inventor's assistant. "The Beachcomber," an impressive characterization by Charles Laughton, is the second feature at the Ritz.

Nation's Air Set-Up.

There have been a lot of aviation pictures, many made with the co-operation of government forces, but none has been more timely than "Wings of the Navy," which the Majestic offers. It isn't simply a "service" picture, but a documental affair neatly interwoven with a fiction romance. The backgrounds were made at Pensacola and San Diego air bases, with George Brent and Olivia de Havilland in the major roles. Dick Powell in "Going Places" is the second film.

LUMBERMENS' ASSETS HIT NEW HIGH THIS YEAR

Keating Reports Increases as Directors Hold 88th Semi-Annual Meeting Here.

Assets of the Lumbermen's Mutual Insurance company increased $159,276 during the first six months of 1939 to an all-time high of $3,211,087, Charles H. Keating, president, told the board of directors at the 88th semi-annual meeting today.

The company's voluntary reserve was boosted $24,228,' bringing the total surplus and reserve to $1,206,114, also a new high for the firm.

Premiums in force increased $231,187 during the first half of this year, the report showed.

Keating pointed out that the business gains were made despite an upward trend in fire losses and an unsettled investment situation and in the face of a threat of higher taxes.

Twelve directors and members of the company's advisory board attended the session this morning. At the meeting were E. S. Nail, Charles H. Keating, H. S. Black, Paul M. Eliot, and James M. Cook all of Mansfield; C. A. Hubbard, Martinsville, Ind.

H. E. Stone, president of the Lumber Mutual Insurance company, Boston; P. P. Parker, Findlay, O.; R. H. Campbell, Toledo; C. P. Hagemeyer, Cincinnati; F. B. Fowler, president of the Indiana Lumbermen's Mutual Insurance company, Indianapolis; and George M. Gray, secretary of the Ohio Hardware Mutual Insurance company, Coshocton.

The group attended a luncheon session at Westbrook Country club following the business meeting.

Strange Story of Romance

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

In case you've ever doubted the power of love and its effect on even the mere onlooker, here's astonishing new evidence to prove it.

In this story, a detective lieutenant, a recorder acting as judge, and a fish merchant who had temporarily lost possession of a new suit and $250, in money—all seem to have forsaken their ordinary standards and given themselves completely over to abetting the sweet insanities of love.

In New Jersey, the other day, a nineteen-year-old youth found himself in a frenzy to hurry up the wedding with his ravishing fiancee. But he lacked a suit good enough for the occasion. In a fit of madness, that is attributed entirely to love, since this young man previously had been honest as the day, he slipped into the house of a fish merchant, and slipping out again, took with him a fine new suit.

Trying on the suit at home, the young man found $250 in one of the pockets. He had certainly never meant to take this money, but since he had it, why not use it to buy essentials for housekeeping? He did so.

A detective lieutenant found it an easy matter to trace the suit. He arrested the boy as he was buying one of these articles and brought him before the recorder. And I'm sure you never heard of such a courtroom scene as followed.

"There's nothing the matter with this boy," agreed the recorder, and the detective and the fish merchant, "except that he's mightily in love. He's never taken other peoples' property before, and we're sure that if we marry him good and quick to that enchanting young miss he is engaged to, he'll never do anything of the sort again."

So nothing was said about sending this young man to jail; instead, they hurried up the wedding for him. The recorder performed the ceremony, the detective was best man and the fish merchant was so completely melted by the spectacle of the happy union that he withdrew his original charge. He even gave the young couple a wedding present of the $75 that the young man had spent, it being understood that the remaining $175 was to be returned to him.

Does all the world love a lover? There can be no possible doubt of it. But the lover must be genuine and the love must be true. If true love occurred oftener, it would be a good thing for all of us. It might even regenerate the cold, hard world we live in.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Lindeman, 517 West Fourth street, and Dr. and Mrs. F. B. Ford of Attica have just returned from a motor trip through the Smokey mountains.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I haven't the slightest idea, Katie," I told her. "My father has something very important on hand. I will tell you as much as I know about it later."

"I'll bet eet someting beeg," she said excitedly. "But now, Missus Graham, vill you plees look at dees program dot old vomans gif me to get for loonch? How I efer go feex all dot und get eet qveeck ven eferybody so hongry?"

I took the list she held out, made in my mother-in-law's beautiful oldfashioned chirography, and pretended to study it carefully, although I knew that, without offending Mother Graham, I could not change this luncheon menu which she had outlined.

"There is nobody very hungry, Katie," I said. "There is only one person who has to be considered separately, and that is my father. He will have to have something special before luncheon, for he has been very ill. But you will have ample time for the preparation of this luncheon, and I think I shall like you to prepare it, for it has my favorite dishes on it. Miss Mary and Mr. Noel will have theirs on a tray in their room, but they will have the same things the rest of us have, and there is no special hurry for them."

"Den dot all right," Katie said, giving the effect of cheerily buckling on her culinary armor. "I feex eferyting. You no need bodder enymore. Only shoost vun ting! Vot you fader vant for hees loonch und how soon?"

"I'll go up to Miss Whitlock right now and find out," I told her. "Then I'll come back to you and tell you all about it."

"Okay," Katie said, already busying herself cheerily with her stove. "Me, I kin feex enyting you vant shoost as qveeck as lettle sheep vag eets tail."

I went out of the room with the familiar, ludicrous but cheering assurance echoing in my ears. Deliberately dodging Lillian and the nursery, I went directly to my father's suite where, before a door slightly ajar, Miss Whitlock kept careful watch. I caught her eye and motioned her to come to me, so that our conversation might not awaken my father.

"He ought to have something to eat before he talks to those men, oughtn't he?" I began.

"Of course," she said quickly.

"Then," I returned, "you'll have to awaken him before the time for Mr. Underwood to come back. He's going to be out of hand if things are delayed too long."

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Sept. 14.

The lunar transits for this day forecast very lively conditions, both in business and in purely personal associations. Matters should move with definite progress and achievement, although there are omens of possible mistakes to be made in undertaking changes, removals or journeys without due consideration and justification. Ther are also financial hazards, with extravagance and indulgence, and hints of legal entanglements.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a lively year, in which both business and private affairs will be greatly accelerated. The danger is in making unwise moves in connection with travel, removal or deals with strangers. Finances may be imperiled by these false moves, or by extravagant outlay of legal complications.

A child born on this day, while being active, energetic and ambitious, may be restless, fond of change and adventure, and keen in the pursuit of pleasure. It should be friendly, popular and fond of the "good things" of life.

"The Authority on Authorities"

CAN'T YOU HEAR?

If your partner figuratively shouts at you at the top of his voice by means of a high-low signal while discarding, you have no earthly excuse for disregarding his come-on request unless you possess an absolutely certain defense against the contract in your own hand. If there is the slightest doubt about the success of some other line of defense, you must do exactly as your partner has asked unless you would rather lose than win.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South got into 3-No Trumps on this deal after starting out with 1-Club. West bid 1-Diamond, North 1-Heart, South 2-Clubs, North 2-Hearts, South 2-No Trumps and North 3-No Trumps.

West properly opened his diamond 5, the Q winning, and a club then led to the K and A, followed by the club Q, heart A and the club 7 to the J.

On the second club lead, East discarded the spade 8 and on the third club lead the spade 2. Had West paid attention to this and led a spade to East's A, the return of a diamond through South would have defeated the contract two tricks. West, however, paid no heed to the spade signal, but led the A and then another diamond. The declarer thereupon finished his clubs and led to the spade Q and A. East having no more diamonds, returned his last spade, so that the declarer made his contract.

With the lead of the heart 9, how should West play for 4-Spades?

Mrs. Philip Walter entertained members of the Knotty club for the first meeting of the season yesterday evening at her home on First avenue. Pastel tinted gladioli decorated the buffet table, when luncheon was served at the close of the games. On Sept. 27, Mrs. Roberts will be hostess for a meeting at the Beveridge tea room.
